NEW WHEELCHAIR — Ruby Gillian, Ashville, who doesn't "feel like a senior citizen," sits in the new wheelchair she received from the Pickaway County Easter Seal Society. With her are Wanda Hamilton, Supporting Services at the Senior Center, and Patty Kirkwood, executive secretary of the Easter Seal Society. Mrs. Gillian also received a decorated birthday cake from Lindsey's Bake Shop.

Ruby Gillian of Ashville, a senior citizen, received a very special kind of 65th birthday present from the Pickaway County Easter Seal Society.

Ruby has been using a wheel chair for many years. When she gets out of bed in the morning she transfers to her wheel chair and stays there until bedtime. She cannot walk or care for herself. She uses a stick to dial the phone. Her hands are handicapped but she can write slowly but beautifully. She is also able to type slowly.

Ruby has had arthritis for many years and is physically handicapped but she is a very cheerful, courageous, and warm-hearted person interested in other people.

She has a tray across the wheel chair and she uses this as a table or desk when she eats or writes.

Ruby's old wheel chair, which had served her many years, needed to be

Bridegroom From Ohio Missing

VIRGINIA BEACH, Va. (AP) — Police here are puzzled by the case of the missing bridegroom.

John and Mary Raab were honeymooning at a hotel in this resort city until the bridegroom vanished last Tuesday after the couple had an argument.

Raab left the couple's hotel room three days after their honeymoon had begun, leaving behind his money, identification and car keys, as well as his bride, a police detective said.

The 25-year-old Raab had just graduated eighth in his class at Ohio State University's school of veterinary medicine, and was to have begun work Monday as a veterinarian in his home town of Lancaster, Ohio.

John and Mary were married June 19 in Columbus, Ohio and then traveled through Virginia, reaching Virginia Beach June 21.

Mrs. Raab told police her husband was depressed the next day.

"We had an argument because he was nervous about starting his practice," she said. "I just told him to leave, only meaning for him to return."

"I just really wish that he would come back, or that I could find out something about him," said Mrs. Raab, who has returned to her parents' home in Columbus.

"I just feel, I guess I just feel, that I let him down."

Police have searched the beach area for the man, without success.

"I don't think he committed suicide," said Det. Joseph Perez.

The detective said Raab became depressed because of fears of starting his new job.

"She (Mrs. Raab) said he was depressed because he didn't think he could fit in with the other two guys he would be working with," he said.

replaced and Ruby's finances were not adequate for replacing it.

Wanda Hamilton, Supporting Services at Senior Citizen's Center, has been helping to take care of Ruby's needs. Ruby also has many friends and neighbors who are interested in her.

After discussing the need for a new wheel chair with Ruby, Mrs. Hamilton contacted Patty Kirkwood, Executive Secretary of the Pickaway County Easter Seal Society. Mrs. Kirkwood arranged for the purchase of the wheel chair for Ruby.

This is the evidence of only one of the many incidences where the Easter Seal Society is helping our local people. Mrs. Hamilton has contacted the Society for many other cases of need for the elderly and she states they have been very helpful in providing equipment and information when it is needed. The Pickaway County Easter Seal Society helps all age groups, the young as well as the elderly.

Ruby Gillian also has a financial need in addition to the wheel chair. There have been many efforts made by Mrs. Hamilton on Ruby's behalf to other agencies. Although they have been very cooperative and admire Ruby's courage, they have certain rules and regulations. They have helped as much as possible. Ruby has an unusual situation.

Mrs. Hamilton has written to William B. Harsha on Ruby's behalf for more income. He checked her records and was very understanding but found no exception could be made. Finally, she is bringing it to the attention of the people in Pickaway County.

Ruby has a bank loan on her home property. The monthly payments are too great for her income and only leaves her a small amount for her immediate expenses. The balance on this loan is $750. If there is any group, club, church, or individual who would like to help erase this loan for Ruby it would be very much appreciated by her.

After this loan has been liquidated Ruby's finances would be much more stable and her income would be sufficient.

Ruby's home is a railroad station which has been remodeled to make a comfortable home. It is adequate but not elaborate. Her property has been valued at $12,000 for insurance purposes.

If you would like any more information on Ruby Gillian's special circumstance or think you can help please contact Wanda Hamilton at the senior citizen center.

Ruby has many friends in Ashville and Circleville area and if folks make an effort to help her she will always be grateful because this is the type of person she is.

Ruby has been a widow since May 27, 1970. She is unable to work. She has Blanche Mullholand, as a companion and aid. Blanche does the housework and cooking.

Wiretap Control Bill Rapped As Too Broad

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate's new intelligence committee is reviewing a wiretap control bill supported by President Ford and a broad range of senators but challenged by critics on grounds it would allow more bugging than it would discourage.

The Senate Judiciary Committee voted 11 to 1 earlier this month to approve the bill which for the first time requires the White House to obtain judicial warrants for national security wiretaps and to certify in writing and under oath that they are necessary.

The intelligence committee begins considering the measure today under the dual jurisdiction it was granted recently as overseer of the performance of the FBI, CIA and other U.S. intelligence agencies.

Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., the bill's chief sponsor, has taken the view that the bill is a major step forward and the best bill that can be passed now.

Kennedy said it would be impossible to win Senate approval of a more sweeping set of controls or an outright ban on wiretapping.

A coalition of groups, including the American Civil Liberties Union, attacked the bill Monday. They said it would "legitimize more wiretapping than it would discourage" because Congress would be going on record for the first time as approving national security wiretaps.

Morton Halperin, who is suing Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger for allegedly authorizing a wiretap on Halperin's telephone when he worked for the National Security Council, also said the measure would give the FBI authority to engage in domestic intelligence gathering.

Halperin contended the Justice Department will claim the bill authorizes such investigations as a means of determining whether a suspect is an "agent" of a foreign power or is "aiding and abetting" such an agent.

Aides to Kennedy disputed Halperin's contention and said the bill in no way applies to anything other than electronic surveillance.

In its present form, the bill requires the attorney general to obtain a court warrant authorizing electronic surveillance in this country on foreign intelligence matters.

The attorney general would be required to present convincing evidence that the target of the wiretap or bug is an agent of a foreign power and to certify that the data sought cannot be obtained by other investigative techniques.

The chief justice of the United States would be authorized to empower seven district court judges around the country to issue wiretap warrants.

Seek $3.5 Million Theft Leader

LONDON (AP) — Scotland Yard launched a nationwide hunt today for a British official of a U.S. air courier company suspected of masterminding the theft of at least $3.5 million from a warehouse at Heathrow Airport.

The Yard refused to give any details. But informed sources said the wanted man was a security manager with Puroator Services Ltd., the courier company, who has not been seen since the theft Saturday from the British Airways warehouse.

The sources refused to give the man's name. But they said the Yard fear he and his partner in the robbery may have already left the country with their loot.

A reward of more than $200,000 has been offered for recovery of the money.

The robbers, wearing Puroator uniforms, went to three airport warehouses operated by British Airways and Sabena, the Belgian airline, sources said. They presented apparently genuine documents and were given five steel strongboxes filled with U.S. dollars, French francs and other money, some awaiting shipment abroad and some sent to England for delivery by Puroator.

The robbers told the warehouse staff the strongboxes were addressed incorrectly and would have to be taken away to be corrected. They reportedly drove away in an armored pickup truck.

The theft was not discovered until Monday, when real officials showed up to pick up the boxes.

"We are sick, very sick," said Keith Watts, general manager of Puroator.

"The warehouse staff did all the right things and asked all the right questions," said an airport police official. "The documents they were shown were quite in order. This looks like an inside job."

The robbery was very similar to another three months ago at Heathrow. In that incident, two men disguised as British Airways couriers bluffed security men at a warehouse into handing over gold and jewels worth an estimated $1 million.

Heathrow, one of the world's busiest airports, is also one of the most crime-plagued. Airport officials admit they suffer theft losses of up to $17.5 million a year.

Reform Plan Said Ready For House

WASHINGTON (AP) — New procedures ordered by House Democrats to prevent payroll and expense account abuses are being implemented amid a fight over whether the full House will get a chance to say anything about the changes.

Democratic leaders met Monday night to discuss whether to have the full House consider the revisions, but they reached no decision.

Republicans planned to review the issue today. Some 106 GOP members have accused the Democrats of trying to ram through the revisions.

The House Administration Committee approved the new procedures Monday. They will take effect as committee regulations when published in the Congressional Record, probably on Wednesday.

But committee Chairman Frank Thompson Jr., D-N.J., said that if the House considers the reforms and rejects any of them, the committee would be obliged to follow the House's will.

The revisions were ordered by the House Democratic Caucus last week after alleged abuses, including the charge that Rep. Wayne Hays, D-Ohio, put Elizabeth Ray on the Administration Committee payroll as his mistress and that nine House members collected travel money to which they were not entitled.

Hays has admitted having a "personal relationship" with Miss Ray but says she was hired to do committee work.

Among other things, the revisions, would:

—Require all House members to certify each month their employees' duties, pay and relationship with their employer. A public accounting would be released every three months.

—Abolish congressmen's ability to draw up to $11,000 in cash a year for travel and stationery.

—Remove the authority of members to save left-over stationery money for their retirements, and abolish the $1,140 annual postage allowance.

—Require that documented vouchers be submitted by members for all expenses and provide that an accounting of every member's expenses be released publicly every three months.

Governor Signs Narcotics Bill

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — A bill easing strict requirements on law enforcement officials in dealing with confiscated narcotics has been signed into law by Gov. James A. Rhodes.

The legislation, sponsored by Senate Minority Leader Michael J. Maloney, R-7 Cincinnati, takes effect July 1, along with the state's new omnibus drug law which it seeks to correct.

Maloney's bill deletes a section of the new law that required prosecutors to set aside one-half of a seized drug cache for the benefit on the accused defense attorney. Instead the law now says the defendant is entitled to a "sample" of the narcotics in question.

The corrective measure also knocks out of the Drug Abuse Law language that would have barred the use of a laboratory drug analysis any later than 90 days after it is performed.

It frees the prosecutor of the requirement to inform the defendant of his right to choose his own drug analyst. But it allows the accused to have a laboratory analyst present if he is not provided with a portion of the substance or if the violation involves a bulk (large) amount.

Rhodes also signed Monday, effective Sept. 27:

Carter Pushes Aid Package For Cities

MILWAUKEE (AP) — Declaring that American cities have been used by Republican administrations as political whipping boys, Democratic presidential candidate Jimmy Carter today delivered a tailor-made appeal to big-city mayors for "a restoration of federalism."

Carter said his federalist war on urban financial troubles would involve federal financial support to struggling cities, administrative freedom for local governments, and involvement of state and local officials in formulation of national policy.

He gave no specifics — dollar amount or otherwise — on his proposed aid package to the cities.

"America's No. 1 economic problem is our cities," he said in remarks for the U.S. Conference of Mayors.

Several hundred Democratic urban leaders were sparing no effort to show Carter he has their full support. Among the mayors are several whose support helped Carter win a string of key primaries.

The event was a gala political debut for Carter before many mayors who had never met him, and his speech mapped a domestic strategy based on federal cooperation with state and local officials.

"After eight years of Ford and Nixon, Carter looks something like the Greek God of Cities," said an aide to Newark, N.J., Mayor Kenneth Gibson.

The conference, dominated by Democrats, has been critical of many of the urban policies implemented by both administrations.

Carter, the likely Democratic presidential nominee, scheduled public and private meetings with

Whale War Declared

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — A group of conservationists has gone to sea to battle bow-tobow with Soviet ships to try to stop the killing of sperm whales.

"Once we find them, we'll stay with them," declared Byrd Baker, a leader of 10 crewmen from the ecology-minded town of Mendocino, Calif., population 1,500.

"We hope the Russians don't come after the whales. But if they come, we'll have to get between their harpooning cannons and the whales to save some lives," he said.

The conservationists' journey is the latest tactic in what they call the "whale war." Earlier, they used a woman dubbed Mendocino Rose, who in a sultry voice urged Soviet whaler crewmen to defect.

Richardson called for sweeping elimination of programs that direct federal money to cities by attacking specific programs, embracing an extensive program of block grants.

Carter supported the public works employment bill now before President Ford, saying, "It would not be rejected by a president who genuinely understood about our cities and their people."

Commerce Secretary Elliot Richardson said Monday that fighting inflation was the key to ending the urban economic malaise. Carter disagreed, saying, "The first thing we need is jobs. Unemployment and poverty are at the heart of the urban problem."

Richardson called for sweeping elimination of programs that direct federal money to cities by attacking specific programs, embracing an extensive program of block grants.

Carter supported the public works employment bill now before President Ford, saying, "It would not be rejected by a president who genuinely understood about our cities and their people."

NEW YORK (AP) —The stock market was mixed today, still gripped by the indecisive mood that set in last week.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrial stocks was off a fraction in the early going, while gainers took a slight lead over losers among New York Stock Exchange-listed issues.

At the opening, the government reported that its index of leading economic indicators rose 1.4 per cent in May for its sharpest increase in 10 months.

But analysts said the positive sign that gave for the outlook for the recovery from the recession was offset by concern that such a broad upturn might also exert upward pressure on interest rates and the cost of living.

Today's early prices included NCR, up 1/4 at 34 1/4; Technicare, ahead 1/2 at 48; and General Motors, down 1/4 at 58 3/4.

On Monday the Dow Jones industrial average slipped 2.46 to 997.38.

Gainers and losers were evenly balanced in the over-all count of NYSE-listed issues. The exchange's composite index lost .12 to 55.23.

Big Board volume came to 17.49 million shares.

At the American Stock Exchange, the market value index was down .14 at 104.92.

Hijackers Demand Prisoner Release

KAMPALA, Uganda (AP) — Palestinians who hijacked an Air France jetliner two days ago today demanded the release of 53 "freedom fighters" held in Israel, West Germany and three other countries as ransom for some 250 hostages and the hijacked French plane, Uganda radio announced.

The hijackers said the prisoners must be brought to Uganda's Entebbe airport and the exchange must be completed before 1200 GMT — 8 a.m. EDT — Thursday.

The broadcast listed 40 "Palestinians and those fighting for the Palestinian cause" held in Israel. They included Archbishop Hilarion Capucci, the Greek Catholic archbishop of Jerusalem who is serving a prison sentence for smuggling arms to Palestinian Arabs.

Six prisoners were listed in West Germany, five in Kenya, one in Switzerland and one in France. Most names were Arabic, but those in West Germany were German names.

A pregnant British woman who was released when the plane stopped for fuel in Libya Sunday reported that there were five hijackers — three Arabs, a woman with a German accent and a man who spoke Spanish — among the 257 persons aboard when the plane was seized just after it took off from Athens. She said they were armed with guns and grenades.

The woman, Patricia Hyman, told a correspondent from the Israeli newspaper Maariv that the leader of the quintet was a thin, elegantly dressed man with European features and a Spanish accent.

"He told the passengers, 'We are Palestinians,' and then he didn't say another word except to tell us the plane was going to land in Libya for fuel and water," Miss Hyman said.

Rumors were already circulating in Europe that the leader was the legendary 26-year-old South American terrorist Ilych Ramirez Sanchez, who is best known under the alias of Carlos. But the Greek Ministry of Public Order said in a statement there was "no evidence whatsoever" he had been in Athens.

Miss Hyman was the only person released by the hijackers. The 256 persons reported aboard when the plane arrived in Kampala early Monday morning included at least nine Americans and about 80 Israelis, but Air France withheld the names of all passengers at the request of the Israeli government.

The Sudanese ambassador, Ambrose Wol, did not say how the hijackers expected to get instructions nor did he identify their high command. Uganda Radio broadcast a long statement from them Monday in which they claimed they were members of the Popular Front for the Liberation of Palestine, a radical offshot of the Palestine Liberation Organization. But the Popular Front's office in Beirut disowned them, and the PLO condemned the hijacking.

The hijackers were holding the hostages in a transit lounge of a former civilian terminal now used for military and cargo flights and also were guarding the hijacked French-built Airbus parked nearby. They threatened to blow up the plane and its passengers if they were attacked, and the heavy guard of Uganda troops around the area made no attempt to interfere with them.

B.F. Goodrich Store Has New Owner

The B.F. Goodrich store, 115 Watt St., was purchased June 25 by Don Cheney, owner of Cheney Tire of New Lexington.

Cheney said the store will continue to sell Goodrich products. The store will also feature a full-line tire and car care service center under the name of Cheney Tire of Circleville.

According to Cheney, the service center will continue to offer shock absorber installation, complete exhaust system and brake work, minor engine tune-ups, front-end alignment, battery service and wheel balancing.

Rhodes Vetoes Spending Bill

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Renewing his attack on the Democrat-controlled legislature, Gov. James A. Rhodes vetoed today key sections of a supplemental spending bill, but let stand a $128.5 million appropriation for the state Medicaid program.

Rhodes struck down a $21 million reappropriation of funds Democratic legislators claim were saved by his two per cent state spending cut.

The Republican governor called this device a "blatant example of the policy of fiscal irresponsibility of the majority of the Ohio General Assembly."

"Two per cent of nothing is nothing," he said, referring to the sanction he imposed last year after asserting that the budget was underfunded by overly-optimistic Democratic revenue estimates.

Also stripped from the bill was language that would have set up advance quarterly payments of the corporate franchise tax by big business with annual tax liabilities over $1,000.

All present employees will remain in their respective departments under the new ownership. R. E. "Hank" Hankins is the store manager and invites all his former customers to stop in and see the new store.

Store employees are Joe Moore, commercial sales; Bev Ferguson, retail sales and office manager; Leroy Yates, general service and Luke Reed, brake and wheel mechanic.

Cheney has been in the tire and car service business for 20 years in the New Lexington area where he operates a retail store and retreat plant that does automobile and truck tires.

He is a director of the Ohio Tire Dealers Association and is chairman of the Retreading Committee. He and his wife Dodie have two children, Todd, 11 and Carol Ann, 6.

Judge Orders $15,000 Bonds Forfeited

James Smith and Steven Kohler, both of Columbus, failed to appear in Pickaway County Common Pleas Court Monday for a hearing.

Charged with breaking and entering and grand theft, they were two of four persons arrested by the Pickaway County Sheriff's Department when they broke into the Hall Adkins American Legion Post on Route 23.

Prosecuting attorney Richard Gerhardt requested Judge William Ammer to order their cash bonds forfeited, $10,000 for Kohler and $5,000 for Smith, and issue a capias for their arrest.

The court complied with the request of the prosecutor. The attorney for the two defendants was James Fox of Columbus.

The two other persons involved in the burglary, Hollie Starcher and Steven Kempton, both of Columbus, entered pleas of guilty.

A presentencing report and investigation was ordered by Judge Ammer for Kempton. The judge sentenced Starcher to 18 months to five years in the Ohio Penitentiary.

Cancer Society Holds Annual Awards Fete

CONGRATULATIONS — Larry Eveland, chairman of the 1976 Pickaway County Cancer Crusade, is shown congratulating P.J. Ranck, board president, for his outstanding years of service to the Cancer Society.

By MARION SINES
Herald Society Editor

Pickaway County Chapter of the American Cancer Society held its annual Awards Banquet Monday evening at Steele's Restaurant.

Following a social hour and dinner the awards were presented for outstanding service during the year and particularly for the annual Crusade, officers elected, reports made and new board members approved.

P.J. Ranck, board president, introduced Mrs. Daisy Gillespie of New Holland, a lifetime board member, and Mrs. Georgia Walker, retired executive director of the local chapter.

Chairmen reporting on the progress made during the past year were: Joyce Eveland, who told of the breast self-examining program and films; Valerie Minor, on public information, distribution of literature, films and workshops attended; Madeline Sanders, executive director, in the absence of Jim Shaw told of his progress in the goal to help patients with all resources available, equipment, drugs and rehabilitation service, and the smoking withdrawal Clinic.

Sue Schneider, treasurer, said although the goal for this year was not attained it had surpassed last year's Crusade in collecting money for research and patient care, and instruction about cancer to the public; Madeline Sanders, Executive Director, told of attending a training and service rehabilitation seminar, the monthly meetings of directors in Columbus, the acquisition of a copy machine and her anticipation of the coming year.

Larry Eveland, Crusade Chairman, told of his success in finding talented key persons for the annual event. There were in all 800 volunteers working this year, and collections exceeded last year's by over $2,000 with more coming in and hopefully memorial donations will increase.

Bob Conley, representing Circleville Jaycees Club, accepted an award for the organization's project in "Send A Mouse To College" which netted $444. Eveland then called Mary Cawley for an award for her success with workers in the crusade. She told of one worker in particular who hadn't walked for 22 years and even though crippled worked extra hard in collecting from individuals in the fight against cancer. A pen set was given to Marion Sines by Eveland for her work during the year in taking pictures and publicizing and promoting activities.

Hap Eaton accepted awards for himself and co-chairman Steve Barthelmas, for their work in promoting the Bike-A-Thon, an annual event which is participated in by many county residents. Larry Lewis, business chairman for the Crusade, received an award for the great increase in contributions made through his efforts.

Calvin Gephart, county chairman, was recognized for his efforts in making the county collections increase over $2,000 this year. Eveland, in his presentation to Joe Tomlinson, vice chairman, told of how Tomlinson accepted challenges not problems, and solved them.

Other chairmen who could not be present receiving recognition were Jim Hall, Marilyn Rorick, Maggie Farthing, Nancy River, Mrs. Gary Tedrow and Mrs. John Rinehart.

Board members are: Sue Schneider, Helen Smith, Valerie Minor, Kathy Scooby, Jim Shaw, Joyce Eveland, Mrs. Ray Harris, Mrs. Charles Harden, Mrs. Everett Peters, Mrs. A.W. Kirk, Mrs. Shirley Drake, Dr. Robert Sliwinski, Peter McQuain, Joe Smith, Joe Tomlinson, Rosemary Mader, Mary McCawley, Larry Eveland, Sara Jane Hoffines, Dr. William Myers, Evelyn Perdon, P.J. Ranck, Marion Sines, Steve Stevenson, Mary Mae Yates and Clark Zwyer.

Elected as officers for the coming year are: Sue Schneider, treasurer, Valerie Minor, secretary; Calvin Gephart, vice president, and Mary Cawley, president.

At the conclusion of the evening's activities Eveland honored P.J. Ranck, board president, for his 10 years of service to the society. He has worked in many capacities in the fight to conquer cancer.

PET OF THE WEEK — This male German Shorthair is 2 1/2 - 3 years old. He is available at the Pickaway County Animal Shelter or by calling 474-3741 or 474-1283. Hijackers Demand Prisoner Release

KAMPALA, Uganda (AP) — Palestinians who hijacked an Air France jetliner two days ago today demanded the release of 53 "freedom fighters" held in Israel, West Germany and three other countries as ransom for some 250 hostages and the hijacked French plane, Uganda radio announced.

The hijackers said the prisoners must be brought to Uganda's Entebbe airport and the exchange must be completed before 1200 GMT — 8 a.m. EDT — Thursday.

The broadcast listed 40 "Palestinians and those fighting for the Palestinian cause" held in Israel. They included Archbishop Hilariu Capucci, the Greek Catholic archbishop of Jerusalem who is serving a prison sentence for smuggling arms to Palestinian Arabs.

Six prisoners were listed in West Germany, five in Kenya, one in Switzerland and one in France. Most names were Arabic, but those in West Germany were German names.

A pregnant British woman who was released when the plane stopped for fuel in Libya Sunday reported that there were five hijackers — three Arabs, a woman with a German accent and a man who spoke Spanish — among the 257 persons aboard when the plane was seized just after it took off from Athens. She said they were armed with guns and grenades.

The woman, Patricia Hyman, told a correspondent from the Israeli newspaper Maariv that the leader of the quintet was a thin, elegantly dressed man with European features and a Spanish accent.

"He told the passengers, 'We are Palestinians,' and then he didn't say another word except to tell us the plane was going to land in Libya for fuel and water," Miss Hyman said.

Rumors were already circulating in Europe that the leader was the legendary 26-year-old South American terrorist Illich Ramirez Sanchez, who is best known under the alias of Carlos. But the Greek Ministry of Public Order said in a statement there was "no evidence whatsoever" he had been in Athens.

Miss Hyman was the only person released by the hijackers. The 256 persons reported aboard when the plane arrived in Kampala early Monday morning included at least nine Americans and about 80 Israelis, but Air France withheld the names of all passengers at the request of the Israeli government.

The Sudanese ambassador, Ambrose Wol, did not say how the hijackers expected to get instructions nor did he identify their high command. Uganda Radio broadcast a long statement from them Monday in which they claimed they were members of the Popular Front for the Liberation of Palestine, a radical offshoot of the Palestine Liberation Organization. But the Popular Front's office in Beirut disowned them, and the PLO condemned the hijacking.

The hijackers were holding the hostages in a transit lounge of a former civilian terminal now used for military and cargo flights and also were guarding the hijacked French-built airbus parked nearby. They threatened to blow up the plane and its passengers if they were attacked, and the heavy guard of Uganda troops around the area made no attempt to interfere with them.

B.F. Goodrich Store Has New Owner

The B.F. Goodrich store, 115 Watt St., was purchased June 25 by Don Cheney, owner of Cheney Tire of New Lexington.

Cheney said the store will continue to sell Goodrich products. The store will also feature a full-line tire and car care service center under the name of Cheney Tire of Circleville.

According to Cheney, the service center will continue to offer shock absorber installation, complete exhaust system and brake work, minor engine tune-ups, front-end alignment, battery service and wheel balancing.

Rhodes Vetoes Spending Bill

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Renewing his attack on the Democrat-controlled legislature, Gov. James A. Rhodes vetoed today key sections of a supplemental spending bill, but let stand a $128.5 million appropriation for the state Medicaid program.

Rhodes struck down a $21 million reappropriation of funds Democratic legislators claim were saved by his two per cent state spending cut.

The Republican governor called this device a "blatant example of the policy of fiscal irresponsibility of the majority of the Ohio General Assembly."

"Two per cent of nothing is nothing," he said, referring to the sanction he imposed last year after asserting that the budget was underfunded by overly-optimistic Democratic revenue estimates.

Also stripped from the bill was language that would have set up advance quarterly payments of the corporate franchise tax by big business with annual tax liabilities over $1,000.

Judge Orders $15,000 Bonds Forfeited

James Smith and Steven Kohler, both of Columbus, failed to appear in Pickaway County Common Pleas Court Monday for a hearing.

Charged with breaking and entering and grand theft, they were two of four persons arrested by the Pickaway County Sheriff's Department when they broke into the Hall Adkins American Legion Post on Route 23.

Prosecuting attorney Richard Gerhardt requested Judge William Ammer to order their cash bonds forfeited, $10,000 for Kohler and $5,000 for Smith, and issue a capias for their arrest.

The court complied with the request of the prosecutor. The attorney for the two defendants was James Fox of Columbus.

The two other persons involved in the burglary, Hollie Starcher and Steven Kempton, both of Columbus, entered pleas of guilty.

A presentencing report and investigation was ordered by Judge Ammer for Kempton. The judge sentenced Starcher to 18 months to five years in the Ohio Penitentiary.

Cancer Society Holds Annual Awards Fete

CONGRATULATIONS — Larry Eveland, chairman of the 1976 Pickaway County Cancer Crusade, is shown congratulating P.J. Ranck, board president, for his outstanding years of service to the Cancer Society.

By MARION SINES
Herald Society Editor

Pickaway County Chapter of the American Cancer Society held its annual Awards Banquet Monday evening at Steele's Restaurant.

Following a social hour and dinner the awards were presented for outstanding service during the year and particularly for the annual Crusade, officers elected, reports made and new board members approved.

P.J. Ranck, board president, introduced Mrs. Daisy Gillespie of New Holland, a lifetime board member, and Mrs. Georgia Walker, retired executive director of the local chapter.

Chairmen reporting on the progress made during the past year were: Joyce Eveland, who told of the breast self-examining program and films; Valerie Minor, on public information, distribution of literature, films and workshops attended; Madeline Sanders, executive director, in the absence of Jim Shaw told of his progress in the goal to help patients with all resources available, equipment, drugs and rehabilitation service, and the smoking withdrawal Clinic.

Sue Schneider, treasurer, said although the goal for this year was not attained it had surpassed last year's Crusade in collecting money for research and patient care, and instruction about cancer to the public; Madeline Sanders, Executive Director, told of attending a training and service rehabilitation seminar, the monthly meetings of directors in Columbus, the acquisition of a copy machine and her anticipation of the coming year.

Larry Eveland, Crusade Chairman, told of his success in finding talented key persons for the annual event. There were in all 800 volunteers working this year, and collections exceeded last year's by over $2,000 with more coming in and hopefully memorial donations will increase.

Bob Conley, representing Circleville Jaycees Club, accepted an award for the organization's project in "Send A Mouse To College" which netted $444. Eveland then called Mary Cawley for an award for her success with workers in the crusade. She told of one worker in particular who hadn't walked for 22 years and even though crippled worked extra hard in collecting from individuals in the fight against cancer. A pen set was given to Marion Sines by Eveland for her work during the year in taking pictures and publicizing and promoting activities.

Hap Eaton accepted awards for himself and co-chairman Steve Barthelmas, for their work in promoting the Bike-A-Thon, an annual event which is participated in by many county residents. Larry Lewis, business chairman for the Crusade, received an award for the great increase in contributions made through his efforts.

Calvin Gephart, county chairman, was recognized for his efforts in making the county collections increase over $2,000 this year. Eveland, in his presentation to Joe Tomlinson, vice chairman, told of how Tomlinson accepted challenges not problems, and solved them.

Other chairmen who could not be present receiving recognition were Jim Hall, Marilyn Rorick, Maggie Farthing, Nancy River, Mrs. Gary Tedrow and Mrs. John Rinehart.

Board members are: Sue Schneider, Helen Smith, Valerie Minor, Kathy Scooby, Jim Shaw, Joyce Eveland, Mrs. Ray Harris, Mrs. Charles Harden, Mrs. Everett Peters, Mrs. A.W. Kirk, Mrs. Shirley Drake, Dr. Robert Sliwinski, Peter McQuain, Joe Smith, Joe Tomlinson, Rosemary Mader, Mary McCawley, Larry Eveland, Sara Jane Hoffines, Dr. William Myers, Evelyn Perdion, P.J. Ranck, Marion Sines, Steve Stevenson, Mary Mae Yates and Clark Zwyer.

Elected as officers for the coming year are: Sue Schneider, treasurer, Valerie Minor, secretary; Calvin Gephart, vice president, and Mary Cawley, president.

At the conclusion of the evening's activities Eveland honored P.J. Ranck, board president, for his 10 years of service to the society. He has worked in many capacities in the fight to conquer cancer.

Hubby's Torrid Verse: Fantasy Or Fact?

DEAR ABBY: I would like to know if I am living with a talented poet or an incurable woman-chaser.

My husband and I are in our late middle years, and I thought him loyal until I found in his desk several hundred love poems he admits he composed himself. Some are as bland as unsalted popcorn, but most are more like enchiladas!

Zane Trace Elementary School Receives Grant

The Zane Trace Elementary School has been awarded an Adaption Grant under Title IV - C from the State of Ohio.

This project, "Diagnosing the Learning Needs of Young Children", will be used to help provide prescriptive diagnostic teaching for kindergarten children before they become involved with academic failure. It should allow the school personnel to look at the total child with an open mind and to determine strengths and weaknesses as a basis for a developmental learning program in the least restrictive environment. This project should help parents evaluate their concerns with their children's readiness for learning.

The diagnosed levels of competencies in various categories will provide a structure for improvement of skills through learning centers in the kindergarten classrooms. This will help to individualize instruction for all children in the class and to meet their respective needs.

This project will provide for diagnosis and follow-up procedures for correction of physical, sociological, psychological, health, or medical dysfunctioning.

All children who will be entering kindergarten in the fall will be screened during the week of August 23-27. Letters will be sent to parents of those children regarding appointments.

On August 2 and 3, Zane Trace Schools will host a workshop for training one-hundred staff members of various nearby school districts. This workshop will enable the personnel to learn details about the screening procedures to be used. At that time, screening manuals and kits will be received, studied, and practiced.

About five students will be screened on the second day of the workshop in order to provide a real experience for the staffs. Persons participating in the screening process will include the coordinators, kindergarten teachers, counselors, speech therapists, special studies teachers, physical education teachers, nurses, principals, and clerks.

When the screening process for all of the kindergarten students has been completed, parents will be notified regarding the results of their children's testings. At that time, decisions will be made regarding the immediate future needs of each child. Learning centers will then be set up in kindergarten classrooms to provide for individual needs of the children.

The Adaptations Grant will also provide materials and equipment for use in the learning centers, related to the different course segments and categories.

A post-test will be administered to the children in the spring, to indicate progress made during the year.

Coordinator of the project at Zane Trace School will be Winifred Beckley, 566 Garden Parkway. She is a teacher of the Primary Special Studies Class and is qualified as a supervisor in both special education and in the elementary classroom. She is a doctoral candidate at Ohio State University.

These impassioned poems of pleading, praise and ecstasy contain the names of more than a dozen women Ginny, Julie, Linda, Jackie, Edna, Florence, etc. All, he insists, are casual encounters about whom he has fantasized.

Is it possible that there is no foundation whatsoever for all these torrid "love affairs" he so vividly described in his poems? Just how much "poetic license" should one be permitted?

POET'S WIFE
DEAR WIFE: Poets have vivid imaginations, but the only way you can tell whether your husband is fantasizing or philandering is to catch him in the latter. Meanwhile renew his license and forget it.

DEAR ABBY: I wonder if you or your readers can come up with an answer to my problem.

I've just moved into a new home. My next-door neighbor is very likeable, and I enjoy her company. However, I visit her home only upon invitation.

Not so with her. She is at my door at least twice a day. Each day her visits become longer. Friday she stayed from 12 noon until 3 p.m. Today (Monday) she was here from noon until 3 p.m. again. Today I scrubbed the kitchen floor and turned on the dishwasher. Conversation was difficult, but it did not slow her down.

In another town, six years ago, I had the same problem. When I suggested to my neighbor that perhaps she was visiting me too much, she left in a huff and never spoke to me again. I felt a loss as she, too, was a nice person whom I enjoyed as a friend.

I don't want to lose my new neighbor's friendship in the same way, but I don't want her to resort to leaving my home daily just to avoid her. How can I discourage her in a way that will retain the friendship on a less frequent basis?

NEEDS SUGGESTIONS
DEAR NEEDS: Take your choice. You can keep quiet and let your neighbor barge in whenever she pleases for as long as she likes. Or you can tell her in a nice way that you need more time to yourself, so you'd appreciate it if she would please call first.

If she rejects your friendship because of your frankness, it's preferable to being trapped in your own home or having to leave it just to avoid her. Who needs friends like that?

DEAR ABBY: Why did you have to write that column saying Indian men were better lovers than white men?

There are enough white women throwing themselves at my half-Mohawk husband without giving them added incentive.

Please, tell those love-hungry white women that if they want an Indian lover, they should have married one, as I did.

Russian Propaganda Promotes Atheism

LENINGRAD, U.S.S.R. (AP) — Fifteen young Russians, led by their tour guide, paused by a papier-mache display at Leningrad's Museum of the History of Religion and Atheism.

The display showed a religious procession winding through the middle of a 14th century European village while stretcher-bearers carried off the bodies of villagers who had died of the Black Plague.

"It was thought that such religious processions would cause God to stop the plague," the young woman guide said with a wry smile. The visitors smiled, too.

"Of course, it didn't help at all." Fifty eight years after the Communists took power, the Soviet Union is still campaigning to convince its people that religion is useless superstition.

The campaign is going "successfully," government propagandists say, but there is no complete box score to back the claim up. There are only scattered official assertions, such as one in 1973 that only 2 per cent of young Soviet citizens believe in God and another this year that at most 60,000 of the country's more than two million Jews actively practice their faith.

Current atheist literature in the Soviet Union, in fact, admits the campaign is still far from over.

Just last year, Leningrad officials were alarmed to discover that only 61 per cent of schoolchildren surveyed had a "positive attitude" toward atheism. The rest, the survey found, couldn't give convincing reasons why a person should be an atheist and therefore could not be considered fully inoculated against religion.

The most common Western estimates are that the Soviet Union's 255 million people still include at least 30 million Russian Orthodox believers, 4 million practicing Roman Catholics, a million Baptists and 25 million Moslems.

The Soviet atheism campaign has a long and checkered history. A few enthusiasts started bulldozing churches immediately after the 1917 Bolshevik Revolution, but the state put a stop to that because it was causing resentment among the population and the buildings could be used for purposes other than religion.

The Communist party waged a strong propaganda campaign against religion from 1925 to 1943, when dictator Joseph Stalin cut the effort off because he needed the support of churchmen in the war against the Germans.

The campaign was revived to an extent after the war and again in the late 1950s, when then Premier Nikita S. Khrushchev believed the country was on the brink of successfully molding the "new Soviet man."

Now, the antireligion campaign is again out of the national spotlight but remains active on lower levels.

The central press talks little about it, Communist leaders leave atheism out of their speeches and the weathervane theoretical journal Kommunist hasn't had a major article on atheism for a year.

Some speculation in Moscow links the low visibility of the atheist movement to the large amount of Western attention that claims of religious injustices here have received.

Other suggestions are that the Soviets are satisfied that religion is no longer a "mass problem" — despite the lines that form at churches at Easter and Christmas.

Meanwhile, the Soviet Union's devout believers — "the unconvertible," propagandists of atheism say — claim pressure on them is as strong as ever.

They report difficulties getting religious materials, pressure to merge congregations and close churches and harassment of believers who try to pass religion on to their children — despite the Soviet Union's constitutional guarantee of freedom of religion.

"There is no religious literature and you can't even try to get it," says one young woman who is an active Baptist. "And the Russian Orthodox, their missal comes out every year in such small quantities that there's barely enough for one in each church."

The Soviet government, however, steadfastly claims that the atheism campaign does nothing more than offer a voluntary alternative to believers. The Tass news agency claimed this year that more than 20,000 churches, synagogues and mosques are freely operating in the country.

Religious dissenters are often described by Soviets as professional malcontents and political opponents of the Soviet state.

These impassioned poems of pleading, praise and ecstasy contain the names of more than a dozen women Ginny, Julie, Linda, Jackie, Edna, Florence, etc. All, he insists, are casual encounters about whom he has fantasized.

Is it possible that there is no foundation whatsoever for all these torrid "love affairs" he so vividly described in his poems? Just how much "poetic license" should one be permitted?

POET'S WIFE
DEAR WIFE: Poets have vivid imaginations, but the only way you can tell whether your husband is fantasizing or philandering is to catch him in the latter. Meanwhile renew his license and forget it.

DEAR ABBY: I wonder if you or your readers can come up with an answer to my problem.

I've just moved into a new home. My next-door neighbor is very likeable, and I enjoy her company. However, I visit her home only upon invitation.

Not so with her. She is at my door at least twice a day. Each day her visits become longer. Friday she stayed from 12 noon until 3 p.m. Today (Monday) she was here from noon until 3 p.m. again. Today I scrubbed the kitchen floor and turned on the dishwasher. Conversation was difficult, but it did not slow her down.

In another town, six years ago, I had the same problem. When I suggested to my neighbor that perhaps she was visiting me too much, she left in a huff and never spoke to me again. I felt a loss as she, too, was a nice person whom I enjoyed as a friend.

I don't want to lose my new neighbor's friendship in the same way, but I don't want her to resort to leaving my home daily just to avoid her. How can I discourage her in a way that will retain the friendship on a less frequent basis?

NEEDS SUGGESTIONS
DEAR NEEDS: Take your choice. You can keep quiet and let your neighbor barge in whenever she pleases for as long as she likes. Or you can tell her in a nice way that you need more time to yourself, so you'd appreciate it if she would please call first.

If she rejects your friendship because of your frankness, it's preferable to being trapped in your own home or having to leave it just to avoid her. Who needs friends like that?

DEAR ABBY: Why did you have to write that column saying Indian men were better lovers than white men?

There are enough white women throwing themselves at my half-Mohawk husband without giving them added incentive.

Please, tell those love-hungry white women that if they want an Indian lover, they should have married one, as I did.

Russian Propaganda Promotes Atheism

LENINGRAD, U.S.S.R. (AP) — Fifteen young Russians, led by their tour guide, paused by a papier-mache display at Leningrad's Museum of the History of Religion and Atheism.

The display showed a religious procession winding through the middle of a 14th century European village while stretcher-bearers carried off the bodies of villagers who had died of the Black Plague.

"It was thought that such religious processions would cause God to stop the plague," the young woman guide said with a wry smile. The visitors smiled, too.

"Of course, it didn't help at all." Fifty eight years after the Communists took power, the Soviet Union is still campaigning to convince its people that religion is useless superstition.

The campaign is going "successfully," government propagandists say, but there is no complete box score to back the claim up. There are only scattered official assertions, such as one in 1973 that only 2 per cent of young Soviet citizens believe in God and another this year that at most 60,000 of the country's more than two million Jews actively practice their faith.

Current atheist literature in the Soviet Union, in fact, admits the campaign is still far from over.

Just last year, Leningrad officials were alarmed to discover that only 61 per cent of schoolchildren surveyed had a "positive attitude" toward atheism. The rest, the survey found, couldn't give convincing reasons why a person should be an atheist and therefore could not be considered fully inoculated against religion.

The most common Western estimates are that the Soviet Union's 255 million people still include at least 30 million Russian Orthodox believers, 4 million practicing Roman Catholics, a million Baptists and 25 million Moslems.

The Soviet atheism campaign has a long and checkered history. A few enthusiasts started bulldozing churches immediately after the 1917 Bolshevik Revolution, but the state put a stop to that because it was causing resentment among the population and the buildings could be used for purposes other than religion.

The Communist party waged a strong propaganda campaign against religion from 1925 to 1943, when dictator Joseph Stalin cut the effort off because he needed the support of churchmen in the war against the Germans.

The campaign was revived to an extent after the war and again in the late 1950s, when then Premier Nikita S. Khrushchev believed the country was on the brink of successfully molding the "new Soviet man."

Now, the antireligion campaign is again out of the national spotlight but remains active on lower levels.

The central press talks little about it, Communist leaders leave atheism out of their speeches and the weathervane theoretical journal Kommunist hasn't had a major article on atheism for a year.

Some speculation in Moscow links the low visibility of the atheist movement to the large amount of Western attention that claims of religious injustices here have received.

Other suggestions are that the Soviets are satisfied that religion is no longer a "mass problem" — despite the lines that form at churches at Easter and Christmas.

Meanwhile, the Soviet Union's devout believers — "the unconvertible," propagandists of atheism say — claim pressure on them is as strong as ever.

They report difficulties getting religious materials, pressure to merge congregations and close churches and harassment of believers who try to pass religion on to their children — despite the Soviet Union's constitutional guarantee of freedom of religion.

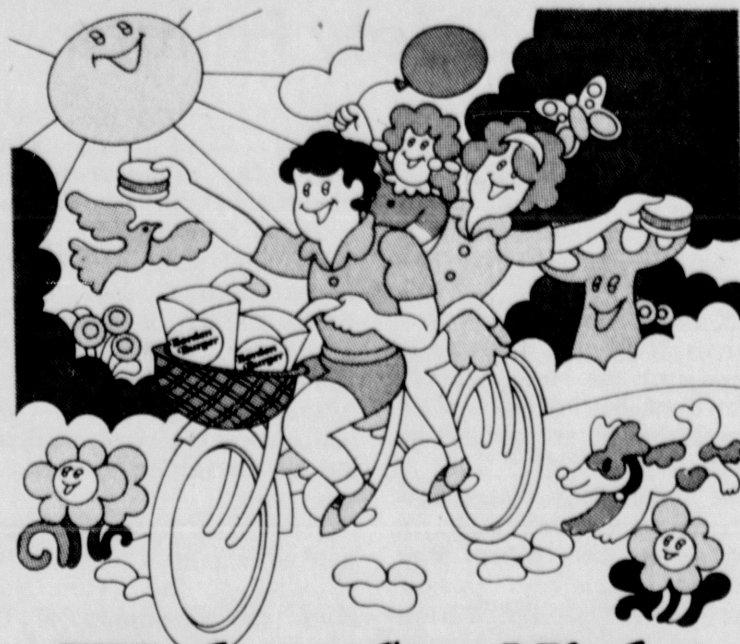

"There is no religious literature and you can't even try to get it," says one young woman who is an active Baptist. "And the Russian Orthodox, their missal comes out every year in such small quantities that there's barely enough for one in each church."

The Soviet government, however, steadfastly claims that the atheism campaign does nothing more than offer a voluntary alternative to believers. The Tass news agency claimed this year that more than 20,000 churches, synagogues and mosques are freely operating in the country.

Religious dissenters are often described by Soviets as professional malcontents and political opponents of the Soviet state.

Federal Safety Failure

As manufacturers all across the United States can well attest, various government bodies are most strenuously seeing to the public's safety, on everything from tricycles which might upset to any number of automotive safety devices. But when it comes to surveying its own safety responsibilities, the government is not always so astute.

The Teton Dam disaster in Idaho is a recent example. In 1972, after two other dam tragedies, Congress passed dam safety legislation designed to "protect human life and property." Some 28,000 dams and other waterway structures were covered by the law, although several hundred dams administered by the Interior Department's Bureau of Reclamation and the Tennessee Valley Authority were excluded because those agencies assured the lawmakers they had adequate safety inspection systems of their own.

There have been controversies about the stability of the Teton Dam from the beginning of the project, and even now there appear to be no assurances that the dam was adequately inspected. Further, the Army Corps of Engineers acknowledges that the legislated inspections of many non-federal dams never were made. The excuse offered was lack of funds.

That is a convenient out, frequently used by government agencies when caught up in serious shortcomings. It is an excuse, however, the government does not recognize when it is the accuser and private industry is the target.

Do you remember when the primary campaigns first began, sometime back in the Ice Age, when everyone laughed at Fred Harris because he had the temerity to suggest that candidates should spend the night in voters' homes to curtail campaign expenses? Apparently the only person who wasn't laughing was Elizabeth Ray.

Though she wasn't exactly curtailing expenses, she was helping to answer the age-old question, do you know where your legislator is tonight?

Ms. Ray brought many things out into the open and I personally couldn't be more delighted. For years I thought our tax dollars were being thrown away on schools, care of the aged, good highways and food for the hungry.

The old joke about Washington used to go something like "First in our hearts and last in the American League." That was before Ms. Ray turned up as a designated hitter.

In light of the revelations it seems inconceivable that people are calling them a do-nothing Congress. They are obviously doing plenty.

Actually it's comforting to know that Gerald Ford isn't the only politician who got caught stumbling, and at least the President had a pair of skis to blame.

Ms. Ray has assuredly advanced the cause of women everywhere but I'm a little concerned about all the publicity she's getting. This kind of exposure can play havoc on the psyche of an introverted, retiring person. I would not like to see Elizabeth Ray become a nervous wreck after all she's done for us.

There is a bit of a paradox to Ms. Ray's behavior through her ordeal. With all the pressure she managed to get a book out faster than an octopus in a lending library.

And, of course, news has reached us that she will be prominently featured in a photo layout in the September issue of Playboy magazine. We can only hope this doesn't result in a voting groundswell for Hugh Hefner. The upcoming conventions are already fraught with confusion.

Of course, one important question mark has been clarified because of the Hay-Hays ha-ha. Now we know why Jimmy Carter is always smiling. Obviously he reads the papers just like the rest of us.

Rep. Hays has nonetheless accomplished quite a bit for his back-home constituents. He has given Ohio more publicity than Woody Hayes' temper or Jack Nicklaus' putter. A caring voter can ask for no more.

There are certain drawbacks, though. It can only be hoped rumors are false that Ms. Ray will be the keynote speaker when the Democrats convene in Madison Square Garden.

Despite the position of prominence Elizabeth Ray has been thrust into, I somehow feel a gnawing pang of suspicion that some of it was premeditated. I genuinely think she might have had an inkling she was going to spill some beans. I say this without rancor, believe me, but let's face it, the average secretary does not have 6,500 eight by ten glossy photographs of herself in her desk drawer without some sort of master plan.

Business World

By JOHN CUNIFF
AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — Many of the most important statistical measures of the economy for late 1975, when a slack recovery developed new vigor, have since been revised, a review of government reports shows.

Some of the revisions, routinely made, indicate the economy was even stronger than originally depicted, but downward revisions not only appear to have been more numerous but to have occurred in more significant areas.

The third-quarter inflation rate as measured by the Gross National Product "deflator," for example, was revised from under 5 per cent, as reported late in the year, to 7.1 per cent in January 1976.

The importance of revisions is underscored by the extent to which statistics are used as the basis of government revenue sharing, political and economic planning, corporate investment and personal buying decisions.

Further intensifying their significance is the emergence of the economy as the number one issue in the presidential election campaign and the heavy reliance on the government numbers.

While there is no question that the economy did indeed become stronger, some of the reports, coming at a time when doubts existed about continued recovery, tended to exaggerate the new strength.

In October, for example, the Commerce Department announced that the Gross National Product, the output of goods and services, rose at a strong 11.2 per cent annual rate in the third quarter of the year.

In addition, it said the inflation rate as measured by the GNP deflator, a broad gauge indicator, held steady at 5 per cent. The figures offered double reassurance to those people who had doubts about the recovery.

It had been no understatement when,

Personal gain to the wayside, we must admit that Elizabeth Ray has done her share for the women's movement. You have not, for example, heard anyone say of late, "A woman's place is in the home." For this, women everywhere are no doubt bursting with gratitude.

As for me, I have always believed that women should have equal rights and the first thing I'd like to see is an itemized check of every Congresswoman's expense accounts.

It couldn't hurt, and it might keep Jimmy Carter laughing.

five days prior to the announcement, President Ford told a meeting of businessmen that "You are going to probably see some very encouraging economic statistics coming out in the next few days."

The improvement, which was very encouraging, looked even better in the next month. In November, that same third-quarter GNP advance was revised upward to 13.2 per cent, and the inflation rate was dropped to 4.7 per cent.

The encouraging revisions continued in December, when the third-quarter rate was again revised upward, this time to 13.4 per cent. The revised inflation rate moved up a minuscule one-tenth of one per cent to 4.8.

The increasingly good news was greeted enthusiastically everywhere. By the stock market too: In December it began one of the sharpest ascents ever recorded, more than 150 points on the Dow Jones industrial average by the end of January.

Then, with relatively little fanfare, those third-quarter GNP figures that had been successfully raised higher in November and December were suddenly revised the other way in January, back to 12 per cent.

Few people noticed; the figures, after all, referred to the year before, to history.

These were not the only statistical indicators that depicted good news during the latter part of 1975 which later, and relatively unnoticed, were revised, often to show a less pronounced improvement.

Retail sales, the index of leading indicators, corporate profits and other reports were subject to repeated revisions, some significantly downward, as more data were collected, examined and re-examined.

The figure for fourth-quarter corporate profits, originally announced at an annual rate of $142 billion, a sharp jump over the third-quarter figure of $130 billion, was revised to $134 billion, the smallest quarterly increase of the year.

This sweeping revision, not made until mid-March of 1976, badly threw off the calculations of some business analysts who had projected the rate far into the future for the benefit of clients, including stock market investors.

A redefinition of consumer price inflation for the year 1975 also illustrates the "bent mirror" view of the economy that can be produced by the numbers. By one measure it was 7 per cent; by another, 9.1 per cent.

The larger number was produced by the traditional method of adding up the monthly data, which represent increases people actually paid, and then averaging it. In the past, this technique had been accepted generally.

The smaller number, which suddenly found favor with the administration and the Federal Reserve, measured price changes from December to December, a technique that failed to depict the actual experience.

The Caves of Nonsuch, located in Port Antonio, Jamaica, contain fossilized sea sponges, clam shells and volcanic ash as well as a frozen waterfall.

Today In History

Speaking Of Your Health

by Lester L. Coleman, M.D.

I have occasional attacks of asthma. Someone suggested that this might be cured by hypnosis. Do you know whether this has been tried with success?

Miss F.B.U., Mo.

Dear Miss U.:

A number of reports from very reliable psychotherapists who use hypnosis in their practice indicates that some patients with bronchial asthma can be benefited by hypnosis.

Dr. Milton V. Kline, director of the Institute for Hypnosis in New York City, has investigated a series of asthmatic cases and found that, in selected cases, there was a definite decrease in the frequency and severity of attacks.

Similar findings were reported by Dr. D. R. Collison of New South Wales in Australia. It was his impression that the ability to go into a deep trance during hypnosis often was beneficial to the asthmatic patient.

It should be emphasized that the excellent drugs now used for asthma should not be discontinued during hypnosis therapy.

Hypnosis is not a parlor game. Its use should be restricted only to those doctors, psychologists and dentists who have had extensive training in this scientific field.

It was once suggested that there may be a chemical to dissolve gallstones. Has any further work been done on this?

Mr. J.M., N.Y.

Dear Mr. M.:

This concept has captured the interest of many physicians and scientists. A number of chemicals such as cholic acid and related substances have, in experimental studies, broken up gallstones filled with cholesterol.

This work is now being translated from the test tube to the human being. In a small number of cases, certain stones seem to have been dissolved.

Continued investigation of this method of dissolving gallbladder stones, and perhaps kidney stones, are being researched all over the country.

Is it proper for a biopsy to be performed in a doctor's office?

Mr. G.R., Tenn.

Dear Mr. R.:

If the proper facilities are available for the removal of a small piece of tissue, it can be done in the doctor's office as well as in a hospital operating room.

U.S. Notes Trade Plus

WASHINGTON (AP) — The nation's foreign trade accounts showed a surplus last month for the first time this year on the strength of record exports and an apparently temporary, sharp drop in oil imports, the government said today.

The Commerce Department said exports exceeded imports by $395.6 million in May. That was the first surplus since last December and contrasted to a $202.1 million deficit in April.

The trade accounts are now $670.8 million in deficit for the year, contrasted to a $3.4 billion surplus over the same period last year. The nation developed a record $11 billion foreign trade surplus in 1975.

The major factor in the May surplus was a 24 per cent drop in the amount of oil imported into the United States. The 165.1 million barrels represented the lowest level of imports in 11 months.

But the shift seemed temporary. The American Petroleum Institute, which reports imports on a weekly basis, has said imports for the current month are running at record levels.

Commerce gave no reason for the plunge in May, but oil imports generally can vary sharply from month to month as refineries and other users adjust their inventories.

Religious Ethics Eyed By Carter

PLAINS, Ga. (AP) — Jimmy Carter, the Democrats' probable presidential nominee, says he believes Christians have a responsibility to disobey civil authorities when they believe that their governments act contrary to the laws of God.

Carter, a deacon in his local Baptist church, also said he thinks Christians should strive to respect civil authorities and be prepared for the consequences if they do not obey them.

His comments came in a brief news conference following a Sunday school lesson about a teaching that Christians should respect and obey civil authorities because they are instituted by God.

And, of course, news has reached us that she will be prominently featured in a photo layout in the September issue of Playboy magazine. We can only hope this doesn't result in a voting groundswell for Hugh Hefner. The upcoming conventions are already fraught with confusion.

Of course, one important question mark has been clarified because of the Hay-Hays ha-ha. Now we know why Jimmy Carter is always smiling. Obviously he reads the papers just like the rest of us.

Rep. Hays has nonetheless accomplished quite a bit for his back-home constituents. He has given Ohio more publicity than Woody Hayes' temper or Jack Nicklaus' putter. A caring voter can ask for no more.

There are certain drawbacks, though. It can only be hoped rumors are false that Ms. Ray will be the keynote speaker when the Democrats convene in Madison Square Garden.

Despite the position of prominence Elizabeth Ray has been thrust into, I somehow feel a gnawing pang of suspicion that some of it was premeditated. I genuinely think she might have had an inkling she was going to spill some beans. I say this without rancor, believe me, but let's face it, the average secretary does not have 6,500 eight by ten glossy photographs of herself in her desk drawer without some sort of master plan.

Business World

By JOHN CUNNEIFF
AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — Many of the most important statistical measures of the economy for late 1975, when a slack recovery developed new vigor, have since been revised, a review of government reports shows.

Some of the revisions, routinely made, indicate the economy was even stronger than originally depicted, but downward revisions not only appear to have been more numerous but to have occurred in more significant areas.

The third-quarter inflation rate as measured by the Gross National Product "deflator," for example, was revised from under 5 per cent, as reported late in the year, to 7.1 per cent in January 1976.

The importance of revisions is underscored by the extent to which statistics are used as the basis of government revenue sharing, political and economic planning, corporate investment and personal buying decisions.

Further intensifying their significance is the emergence of the economy as the number one issue in the presidential election campaign and the heavy reliance on the government numbers.

While there is no question that the economy did indeed become stronger, some of the reports, coming at a time when doubts existed about continued recovery, tended to exaggerate the new strength.

In October, for example, the Commerce Department announced that the Gross National Product, the output of goods and services, rose at a strong 11.2 per cent annual rate in the third quarter of the year.

In addition, it said the inflation rate as measured by the GNP deflator, a broad gauge indicator, held steady at 5 per cent. The figures offered double reassurance to those people who had doubts about the recovery.

It had been no understatement when,

Personal gain to the wayside, we must admit that Elizabeth Ray has done her share for the women's movement. You have not, for example, heard anyone say of late, "A woman's place is in the home." For this, women everywhere are no doubt bursting with gratitude.

As for me, I have always believed that women should have equal rights and the first thing I'd like to see is an itemized check of every Congresswoman's expense accounts.

It couldn't hurt, and it might keep Jimmy Carter laughing.

five days prior to the announcement, President Ford told a meeting of businessmen that "You are going to probably see some very encouraging economic statistics coming out in the next few days."

The improvement, which was very encouraging, looked even better in the next month. In November, that same third-quarter GNP advance was revised upward to 13.2 per cent, and the inflation rate was dropped to 4.7 per cent.

The encouraging revisions continued in December, when the third-quarter rate was again revised upward, this time to 13.4 per cent. The revised inflation rate moved up a minuscule one-tenth of one per cent to 4.8.

The increasingly good news was greeted enthusiastically everywhere. By the stock market too: In December it began one of the sharpest ascents ever recorded, more than 150 points on the Dow Jones industrial average by the end of January.

Then, with relatively little fanfare, those third-quarter GNP figures that had been successively raised higher in November and December were suddenly revised the other way in January, back to 12 per cent.

Few people noticed; the figures, after all, referred to the year before, to history.

These were not the only statistical indicators that depicted good news during the latter part of 1975 which later, and relatively unnoticed, were revised, often to show a less pronounced improvement.

Retail sales, the index of leading indicators, corporate profits and other reports were subject to repeated revisions, some significantly downward, as more data were collected, examined and re-examined.

The figure for fourth-quarter corporate profits, originally announced at an annual rate of $142 billion, a sharp jump over the third-quarter figure of $130 billion, was revised to $134 billion, the smallest quarterly increase of the year.

This sweeping revision, not made until mid-March of 1976, badly threw off the calculations of some business analysts who had projected the rate far into the future for the benefit of clients, including stock market investors.

A redefinition of consumer price inflation for the year 1975 also illustrates the "bent mirror" view of the economy that can be produced by the numbers. By one measure it was 7 per cent; by another, 9.1 per cent.

The larger number was produced by the traditional method of adding up the monthly data, which represent increases people actually paid, and then averaging it. In the past, this technique had been accepted generally.

The smaller number, which suddenly found favor with the administration and the Federal Reserve, measured price changes from December to December, a technique that failed to depict the actual experience.

Speaking Of Your Health

by Lester L. Coleman, M.D.

I have occasional attacks of asthma. Someone suggested that this might be cured by hypnosis. Do you know whether this has been tried with success?

Miss F.B.U., Mo.

A number of reports from very reliable psychotherapists who use hypnosis in their practice indicate that some patients with bronchial asthma can be benefited by hypnosis.

Dr. Milton V. Kline, director of the Institute for Hypnosis in New York City, has investigated a series of asthmatic cases and found that, in selected cases, there was a definite decrease in the frequency and severity of attacks.

Similar findings were reported by Dr. D. R. Collison of New South Wales in Australia. It was his impression that the ability to go into a deep trance during hypnosis often was beneficial to the asthmatic patient.

It should be emphasized that the excellent drugs now used for asthma should not be discontinued during hypnosis therapy.

Hypnosis is not a parlor game. Its use should be restricted only to those doctors, psychologists and dentists who have had extensive training in this scientific field.

Ohio Highway Priorities Set

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Transportation Director Richard D. Jackson said today his department later this week will release a list of about 400 highway projects which will receive priority in the next five years.

He told a news conference that the list, culled down since the first of the year from about 900 projects, represents all the department can do with existing revenues.

Jackson pointed out that Ohio voters last November rejected a proposal by Gov. James A. Rhodes which would have hiked the state's 7-cents-a-gallon gasoline tax by .9 cents to help build transportation projects.

That proposal, along with three others which Rhodes asserted would have bolstered Ohio's economy, was defeated at the polls by a margin of about 5-1.

The director said "about 16 per cent of the people indicated they were not interested" in raising taxes.

Jackson held the news conference before a statewide meeting of regional directors and other top level officials of the transportation department to review the priority projects and to discuss department finances and employment problems.

Court Kills School Order

WASHINGTON (AP) — In a major school busing decision, the Supreme Court today ruled that federal courts cannot require school districts to annually alter desegregation plans to keep abreast of population shifts.

The court said annual changes in busing routes and assignment of pupils are not required even though integration has not been "totally achieved."

By a 6-2 vote, the court set aside a Ninth U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals ruling that the continued annual court review of the Pasadena, Calif., school system was justified.

The court's decision followed by only a few days President Ford's action sending to Congress a bill to limit busing orders to five years.

The case stemmed from an order issued in January 1970 by U.S. District Judge Manuel L. Real of Los Angeles requiring the Pasadena Unified School District to come up with a plan under which no school would have a majority of any minority race.

It was once suggested that there may be a chemical to dissolve gallstones. Has any further work been done on this?

Mr. J.M., N.Y.

Dear Mr. M.:
This concept has captured the interest of many physicians and scientists. A number of chemicals such as cholic acid and related substances have, in experimental studies, broken up gallstones filled with cholesterol.

This work is now being translated from the test tube to the human being. In a small number of cases, certain stones seem to have been dissolved.

Continued investigation of this method of dissolving gallbladder stones, and perhaps kidney stones, are being researched all over the country.

Is it proper for a biopsy to be performed in a doctor's office?

Mr. G.R., Tenn.

Dear Mr. R.:
If the proper facilities are available for the removal of a small piece of tissue, it can be done in the doctor's office as well as in a hospital operating room.

U.S. Notes Trade Plus

WASHINGTON (AP) — The nation's foreign trade accounts showed a surplus last month for the first time this year on the strength of record exports and an apparently temporary, sharp drop in oil imports, the government said today.

The Commerce Department said exports exceeded imports by $395.6 million in May. That was the first surplus since last December and contrasted to a $202.1 million deficit in April.

The trade accounts are now $670.8 million in deficit for the year, contrasted to a $3.4 billion surplus over the same period last year. The nation developed a record $11 billion foreign trade surplus in 1975.

The major factor in the May surplus was a 24 per cent drop in the amount of oil imported into the United States. The 165.1 million barrels represented the lowest level of imports in 11 months.

But the shift seemed temporary. The American Petroleum Institute, which reports imports on a weekly basis, has said imports for the current month are running at record levels.

Commerce gave no reason for the plunge in May, but oil imports generally can vary sharply from month to month as refineries and other users adjust their inventories.

Religious Ethics Eyed By Carter

PLAINS, Ga. (AP) — Jimmy Carter, the Democrats' probable presidential nominee, says he believes Christians have a responsibility to disobey civil authorities when they believe that their governments act contrary to the laws of God.

Carter, a deacon in his local Baptist church, also said he thinks Christians should strive to respect civil authorities and be prepared for the consequences if they do not obey them.

His comments came in a brief news conference following a Sunday school lesson about a teaching that Christians should respect and obey civil authorities because they are instituted by God.

Green Revolution Still Holds Promise

WASHINGTON (AP) — A report by the Agriculture Department says that the so-called Green Revolution heralded a few years ago as a scientific movement to feed the world has slowed perceptibly but that improved, high-yielding varieties of food grains still hold promise for accomplishing their goals.

But the department's Economic Research Service said that individual countries — mainly the poor ones — will have to assume a greater role in helping smaller farmers get enough fertilizer and water to use the new food-producing technology.

Haldore Hanson, director general of the International Wheat and Maize Improvement Center in Mexico, where scientists first developed high-yielding semi-dwarf wheat varieties, say in the agency's report that "even without expanding acreage, the world can double its food production by the year 2000, to match the expected doubling of its population."

In the early 1970s, the use of the new "miracle" wheat and rice seed for planting rose about 18 per cent a year. But by 1974-75, the acreage devoted to those seeds expanded only eight per cent. The report said that fertilizer shortages and high prices probably were the main reason for the slowdown.

The report, included in "Farm Index" published today by the department, said scientists at the center in Mexico and at the International Rice Research Institute in the Philippines still are working to improve grain varieties, hopefully so that they can be adapted to more areas of the world where hunger is a lingering problem or threat.

"Some critics contend that because high-yielding varieties require relatively high levels of fertilizer and water for maximum yield the small, poor farmers of the developing world are being left behind," the report said.

The report said that "at optimal levels of fertilizer, highyield varieties have been known to outyield traditional ones by as much as 300 per cent."

'Karate Kid' Wins Black Belt At 6

CHARLESTON, W.Va. (AP) — Eyes narrowed in concentration, Matt Hodges studied the square board in front of him. He ran, let out a yell and split the one-inch thick pine board with one kick.

Breaking a one-inch board is one of the requirements for becoming a first dan, or degree, black belt holder in karate. Also required are the perfect execution of nine forms, or series of movements, and knowledge of karate terminology and philosophy.

Six-year-old Matt completed all the requirements with a hitch Saturday and became the youngest black belt holder in the history of the United States and possibly in the world.

Matt started when he was 3½ as the youngest student in one of six Korean karate academies owned by Sok Ho Kang in West Virginia.

"I usually don't take them so young," said Kang, a seventh dan black belt holder. "But Matt was mature; he listened to what I told him. He has good discipline and technique for his age."

The forms Matt performed are series of movements incorporating karate blocks and punches. To the untrained eye, they look like carefully choreographed dance steps.

"But each movement has a meaning," Kang explained. "Each form exercises every part of the body and uses different attacks and defenses. Matt knows the reason for every movement in every form."

"Matt," he called out to the blond boy sparring in the center of the room with an imaginary partner. "What does this mean?" Kang crossed his arms at the wrists and turned sideways.

Matt mimicked the movement and replied, "You do that if someone tries to attack you with a stick."

The terminology Matt recited for his test included the Korean words for the nine forms, various karate movements and such things as the training school, student and training suit. But when the examiner came to the Korean term for karate instructor, kwan chang nim, Matt immediately answered "Master Kang."

Equitable Loan Offers Special Bicentennial Bonds

Equitable Federal Savings and Loan Assn. will, on request, issue bicentennial-design Series E Savings Bonds dated July 4 to over-the-counter customers between July 1 and July 31.

This special commemoration of our nation's 200th birthday will have no effect on the terms and conditions effective on the bonds.

In announcing this special opportunity, Bonnie Hildenbrand, Circleville branch manager, said "We are extremely pleased to offer everyone in this area a chance to make the purchase of savings bonds a truly Bicentennial event. Those bonds bearing the July 4 date will make perfect souvenirs of our birthday celebration that everyone will want to have and keep for many years to come."

Denominations of the bicentennial-design Series E Savings Bond range from $25 to $1,000, with purchase prices of $18.75 to $750. They draw six per cent interest when held to a five year maturity (4½ per cent the first year), and carry an automatic 10-year extension of interest beyond maturity.

Ruling Could Force Big City Growth

Derailment Releases Toxic Fumes

SOUTH PORTSMOUTH, Ky. (AP) — About 100 families were expected to be asked to leave their homes today while workers try to remove two railroad tank cars carrying explosive vinyl chloride gas which derailed in Greenup County.

Tom Johnson, a spokesman for the Chesapeake and Ohio Railroad, said the families were evacuated Monday when C&O officials hoped to remove two 40,000-gallon Union Carbide tank cars loaded with the chemical.

Johnson said a decision was made Monday night to postpone the recovery operation today and allow the families to return home.

He said the tracks had been cleared and that the tank cars were lying on their sides near the tracks. The job of putting the tank cars back on tracks would be "pretty routine," Johnson said, although the operation would take most of today and is not expected to be completed until late this afternoon.

The tank cars were among 21 of a Chessie System freight train that left the tracks Sunday about 40 yards from the Ohio River. The train was en route from Silver Grove to Russell, Ky.

As workers were clearing the wreckage Sunday night, a boxcar caught fire, slightly injuring three South Shore volunteer firemen, who were treated and released for smoke inhalation at a Portsmouth, Ohio, hospital.

There were no other reports of injuries. An estimate of damage to railroad property was not available. Highway traffic on Kentucky 10 was rerouted during the repair operation.

Waltner Retires As Hospital Chief

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Dr. Charles Waltner is retiring on July 1 after 18 years as superintendent at Woodside Receiving Hospital, a facility of the state Department of Mental Health and Mental Retardation.

Dr. Waltner, a 68-year-old native of Hungary, began his career with the state in 1941 at the Youngstown Receiving Hospital, now called Woodside, as a staff physician.

In 1951 he left there to become clinical director and assistant superintendent at Cleveland State Hospital. He returned to Woodside in 1958. Waltner said he hopes to teach psychiatry and do research after retiring.

ners, reformers and neighborhood leaders who oppose the exclusionary practices of the suburbs but seek growth in declining city neighborhoods.

The court upheld an Eastlake, Ohio ordinance requiring voter approval of zoning changes and land use, perhaps setting the stage unintentionally for a pattern of blocked suburban growth.

"This is not a planned strategy, it is merely an accident," said Cleveland Planning Director Norman Krumholz. "If that kind of antigrowth policy becomes widespread, it would...tend to raise demand in the city."

Opponents of voter-controlled zoning say it is designed to keep out minority groups and the poor, but they and others point out that it could also involve projects politicians may approve but voters would reject.

Examples could be a shopping center residents of a suburb might think would upset the quiet of their town or a high-rise apartment building suburban voters may perceive as a strain on city services and a drain on their taxes.

Many of those projects would be welcome in central cities. But the decision may also open the way for city neighborhoods to control building and land use.

"If anything would stop the expansion of the suburban sprawl, it would be a plus," said Gale Cincotta, president of the National Peoples Action, a neighborhoods coalition in Chicago.

The Eastlake ordinance provides that the entire city can vote on zoning and land use matters approved by City Council, so it is unclear whether smaller parts of big cities, such as wards, could exercise the same control.

One problem is that residents of a city neighborhood may not have as much control as the residents of suburbs. Another is that what may be undesirable in a suburb—be it residential, commercial, or industrial development—may be equally undesirable in a city neighborhood.

Another possible pitfall is if there is a boom in housing and commercial development in the city, it might displace poorer residents. That would do little toward solving Cleveland's housing crisis, which has been acknowledged as being a shortage of affordable housing.

Samuel H. Miller, chief operating officer of Forest City Enterprises, said once suburban voters feel a property tax pinch, they probably will look for more development to ease the burden. But he also said he thinks developers would be looking more closely at city neighborhoods because of the decision.

4 Arrested In Slaying

CLEVELAND (AP) — Four suspects face a variety of charges in connection with the weekend slaying of eight-year-old Karen Kollar.

Two of the four—Dallas Stuckey, 19, and Guy Frehmeyer, 18; have been charged with aggravated murder; and were scheduled to appear in Cleveland Municipal Court Tuesday.

Stuckey jumped a $500 bond two months ago in connection with an attack on another girl that took place in December. He was charged with assault but never appeared in court. David Zytowiecki, 21, has been charged with obstructing justice. He was accused of helping to hide the child's killers and making plans to get them out of town.

His wife, Susan, 16, has been charged with delinquency by reason of aggravated murder and kidnapping. Karen was battered to death with stones after she survived two attempts to kill her by throwing her from an abandoned brewery.

Officers said the incident stemmed from an attempt to scare the girl as punishment for having told Zytowiecki that his wife had skipped a probation appointment.

Mrs. Zytowiecki was on probation for stealing a license plate, police said.

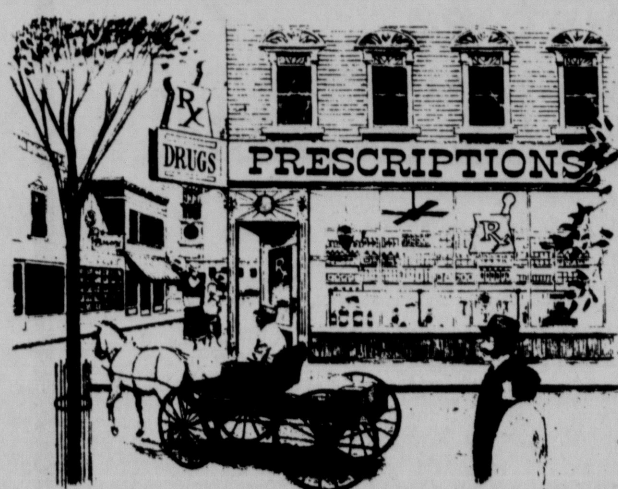

Humphrey Backs Mondale For VP

SOUTH BEND, Ind. (AP) — Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey says he would like to see his Minnesota colleague Walter Mondale as Jimmy Carter's running mate this fall.

Humphrey addressed about 850 persons at a fund-raising dinner at the University of Notre Dame Monday night for Rep. John Brademas.

Humphrey, questioned whether he would accept the vice presidential nomination if offered, said, "I'm plugging for Mondale."

He also said he has a good working relationship with Carter and has spoken with the former Georgia governor about helping him in the fall campaign.

ners, reformers and neighborhood leaders who oppose the exclusionary practices of the suburbs but seek growth in declining city neighborhoods.

The court upheld an Eastlake, Ohio ordinance requiring voter approval of zoning changes and land use, perhaps setting the stage unintentionally for a pattern of blocked suburban growth.

"This is not a planned strategy, it is merely an accident," said Cleveland Planning Director Norman Krumholz. "If that kind of antigrowth policy becomes widespread, it would...tend to raise demand in the city."

Opponents of voter-controlled zoning say it is designed to keep out minority groups and the poor, but they and others point out that it could also involve projects politicians may approve but voters would reject.

Examples could be a shopping center residents of a suburb might think would upset the quiet of their town or a high-rise apartment building suburban voters may perceive as a strain on city services and a drain on their taxes.

Many of those projects would be welcome in central cities. But the decision may also open the way for city neighborhoods to control building and land use.

"If anything would stop the expansion of the suburban sprawl, it would be a plus," said Gale Cincotta, president of the National Peoples Action, a neighborhoods coalition in Chicago.

The Eastlake ordinance provides that the entire city can vote on zoning and land use matters approved by City Council, so it is unclear whether smaller parts of big cities, such as wards, could exercise the same control.

One problem is that residents of a city neighborhood may not have as much control as the residents of suburbs. Another is that what may be undesirable in a suburb—be it residential, commercial, or industrial development—may be equally undesirable in a city neighborhood.

Another possible pitfall is if there is a boom in housing and commercial development in the city, it might displace poorer residents. That would do little toward solving Cleveland's housing crisis, which has been acknowledged as being a shortage of affordable housing.

Samuel H. Miller, chief operating officer of Forest City Enterprises, said once suburban voters feel a property tax pinch, they probably will look for more development to ease the burden. But he also said he thinks developers would be looking more closely at city neighborhoods because of the decision.

'Karate Kid' Wins Black Belt At 6

CHARLESTON, W.Va. (AP) — Eyes narrowed in concentration, Matt Hodges studied the square board in front of him. He ran, let out a yell and split the one-inch thick pine board with one kick.

Breaking a one-inch board is one of the requirements for becoming a first dan, or degree, black belt holder in karate. Also required are the perfect execution of nine forms, or series of movements, and knowledge of karate terminology and philosophy.

Six-year-old Matt completed all the requirements with a hitch Saturday and became the youngest black belt holder in the history of the United States and possibly in the world.

Matt started when he was 3½ as the youngest student in one of six Korean karate academies owned by Sok Ho Kang in West Virginia.

"I usually don't take them so young," said Kang, a seventh dan black belt holder. "But Matt was mature; he listened to what I told him. He has good discipline and technique for his age."

The forms Matt performed are series of movements incorporating karate blocks and punches. To the untrained eye, they look like carefully choreographed dance steps.

"But each movement has a meaning," Kang explained. "Each form exercises every part of the body and uses different attacks and defenses. Matt knows the reason for every movement in every form."

"Matt," he called out to the blond boy sparring in the center of the room with an imaginary partner. "What does this mean?" Kang crossed his arms at the wrists and turned sideways.

Matt mimicked the movement and replied, "You do that if someone tries to attack you with a stick."

The terminology Matt recited for his test included the Korean words for the nine forms, various karate movements and such things as the training school, student and training suit. But when the examiner came to the Korean term for karate instructor, kwan chang nim, Matt immediately answered "Master Kang."

Equitable Loan Offers Special Bicentennial Bonds

Equitable Federal Savings and Loan Assn. will, on request, issue bicentennial-design Series E Savings Bonds dated July 4 to over-the-counter customers between July 1 and July 31.

This special commemoration of our nation's 200th birthday will have no effect on the terms and conditions effective on the bonds.

In announcing this special opportunity, Bonnie Hildenbrand, Circleville branch manager, said "We are extremely pleased to offer everyone in this area a chance to make the purchase of savings bonds a truly Bicentennial event. Those bonds bearing the July 4 date will make perfect souvenirs of our birthday celebration that everyone will want to have and keep for many years to come."

Denominations of the bicentennial-design Series E Savings Bond range from $25 to $1,000, with purchase prices of $18.75 to $750. They draw six per cent interest when held to a five year maturity (4½ per cent the first year), and carry an automatic 10-year extension of interest beyond maturity.

4 Arrested In Slaying

CLEVELAND (AP) — Four suspects face a variety of charges in connection with the weekend slaying of eight-year-old Karen Kollar.

Two of the four—Dallas Stuckey, 19, and Guy Frehmeyer, 18; have been charged with aggravated murder; and were scheduled to appear in Cleveland Municipal Court Tuesday.

Stuckey jumped a $500 bond two months ago in connection with an attack on another girl that took place in December. He was charged with assault but never appeared in court.

David Zytowiecki, 21, has been charged with obstructing justice. He was accused of helping to hide the child's killers and making plans to get them out of town.

His wife, Susan, 16, has been charged with delinquency by reason of aggravated murder and kidnapping.

Karen was battered to death with stones after she survived two attempts to kill her by throwing her from an abandoned brewery.

Officers said the incident stemmed from an attempt to scare the girl as punishment for having told Zytowiecki that his wife had skipped a probation appointment.

Mrs. Zytowiecki was on probation for stealing a license plate, police said.

Humphrey Backs Mondale For VP

SOUTH BEND, Ind. (AP) — Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey says he would like to see his Minnesota colleague Walter Mondale as Jimmy Carter's running mate this fall.

Humphrey addressed about 850 persons at a fund-raising dinner at the University of Notre Dame Monday night for Rep. John Brademas.

Humphrey, questioned whether he would accept the vice presidential nomination if offered, said, "I'm plugging for Mondale."

He also said he has a good working relationship with Carter and has spoken with the former Georgia governor about helping him in the fall campaign.

Miss Debra Jean Dumm, Wertie Edward Teets Wed In Candlelight Ceremony

MR. AND MRS. WERTIE EDWARD TEETS

In a candlelight ceremony Miss Debra Jean Dumm became the bride of Mr. Wertie Edward Teets 2:30 p.m., May 29, in Trinity Lutheran Church of Circleville.

Pastor Carl G. Zehner officiated the double ring service for the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward N. Dumm, 1032 Mulberry Road, and the son of Mr. and Mrs. Russell E. Teets, Route 4.

The church was decorated with altar vases of red carnations, white gladioli, and palm leaves, flanked with candelabra. The unity candle was lighted by the couple during the ceremony.

Mrs. Thomas Downing, organist, presented a program of nuptial music. Selections preceding the ceremony included "Brian's Song," "Sunrise, Sunset," "We've Only Just Begun" and "Wedding Song." During the ceremony as the couple knelt at the altar she played "The Lord's Prayer."

The bride was given in marriage by her father and mother. For her wedding she selected a formal length gown of ivory linen in an empire silhouette. Cluny lace encircled the scoop neckline and continued down the front of the dress in a panel to a deep ruffle at the hemline. Matching lace was down the top of the full length bell sleeves and also formed a back panel. The bride's veil of bridal illusion and cluny lace fell softly to three-quarter length from a ruffled caplet designed and made by the bride's aunt, Mrs. Forrest J. Rhoden of Gardena, Calif.

The bride carried a colonial bouquet of red carnations, white miniature mums, navy blue star flowers, baby's breath, greenery and blue ribbon forming bows and streamers, atop her mother's white Bible. She also carried a pink champagne silk handkerchief edged in lace, a gift from an aunt. Her jewelry included a gold pendant locket with a diamond cross which had belonged to her great-great-grandmother. It contained pictures of her grandmother and grandfather.

Matron of honor was Mrs. Christopher Morgan. She wore a full length red knit halter gown with crisscross spaghetti back straps and a matching ruffled shawl, and a red picture hat. Her navy blue choker of sea shells was a gift of the bride; and she carried a single long stemmed red silk rose surrounded by baby's breath, and tied with red, white and blue ribbon forming long streamers.

Miss Patty Dumm, cousin of the bride, was maid of honor, and Miss Debbie Marshall was bridesmaid. They were gowned identically as the honor attendant in red, white, blue and beige India print with matching shawls and navy blue picture hats. Their shell necklaces matched that of the matron of honor and they carried matching flowers with navy blue streamers.

Flower girl was Miss Julie Rubin, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Rubin of Circleville, and a niece of the bridegroom. She was attired in a floor length gown of navy blue with a red, and white flower print and short ruffled sleeves. She carried a natural wicker basket of flowers like those in the bride's bouquet.

Master, Denny McClure, cousin of the bride, was ring bearer. He carried the rings on a pillow with ruffled edges of lace and long ribbon streamers holding lilies of the valley and the rings.

Serving as best man was Mr. Tom Skinner, cousin of the bridegroom. Mr. Jim Teets, brother of the bridegroom, and Mr. Barry Weaver, a cousin, were ushers.

The bride's mother wore a full length sleeveless A-line gown of turquoise with a mock turtle neckline and long sleeved matching jacket edged in turquoise lace. Her corsage was of white carnations with turquoise ribbon.

The bridegroom's mother was attired in a floor length navy blue gown with a V-neckline and red and white polka dot scarf. Her flowers were red carnations tied with white ribbon.

A reception in the Parish House of the church immediately followed the ceremony. The four tiered wedding cake was topped with red and white carnations, blue cornflowers and baby's breath, and surrounded at the base with red and white carnations. Silver candelabra, holding white tapers, were decorated with red, white and blue bows and ribbons.

Hostesses were Mrs. Phil Peloquin, Miss Beth Skinner, cousin of the bridegroom, and Miss Karen Collins, also a cousin of the bridegroom. Mrs. Robert Lutz presided at the guest book.

As the couple left for a wedding trip to Lake Erie Vacationlands, the bride wore a long sleeved natural gauze belted tunic edged in embroidery and a macrame trimmed neckline, with coral slacks. The couple now resides at 527-B Gumm Place, Nicholas Square.

The bride is a 1972 graduate of Circleville High School and is associated with DECA Alumni International. She is employed at Berger Hospital in the accounts receivable department.

The bridegroom is a 1972 graduate of Logan Elm High School. He served in the United States Marines and was stationed in the Philippine Islands. He is employed by General Telephone in Circleville as an installer and repairer.

Out-of-town guests were from Grove City, Columbus, Williamsport, Orient, Lancaster, Newark, Baltimore, Athens, Beverly, Stoutsville and Ash-

shortage
is costing more than just higher gas bills.

First of all, let's not kid ourselves that the natural gas shortage isn't for real. It is very real.

And yes, we all know that gas bills are going up. But the gas shortage has a price that doesn't show up on our gas bills. It's the cost of curtailment — rationing — of natural gas.

In 1975, U.S. industry couldn't get all the gas it needed. Companies that could afford to, switched to alternate fuels — at a cost of nearly three billion dollars more than their gas bill would have been! And who pays for that extra cost? All of us do. In the cost of the products those firms make.

And when companies cut back or shut down because they can't afford the cost of going to alternate fuels, there's an even higher price to pay. Lost jobs.

Higher product prices and higher unemployment. They don't show up on the gas bill.

But they're a real cost of the gas shortage.

YMCA Day Camp Stresses Involvement With Nature

Big plans for YMCA Day Camp this year will offer boys and girls an outdoor experience, stressing involvement with nature, group skills and also fellowship with other children. Minimum age for Day Camp is six. Children must be pre-registered for Day Camp and registrations can still be taken for the first period including this Saturday. They may be signed up at the YMCA and a limited number of sponsored children can also be registered.

The Day Camp is located at the Girl Scout Camp, Camp Miska, on the Saltcreek road off of Route 159. The fee includes transportation, craft material, daily beverage, trip insurance and food for the Friday cookout.

According to Harold Hewitt, YMCA director, the camp experience builds into today's youth a sense of belonging. When they come home they will have many stories to tell their parents about what they did, the new friends they met and all of the details. But moreover, they will have a valuable sense of comparison to their lives in the city, the sense of knowing there is something more than playing on the same street all summer long, might be the most important thing camp can give a child.

Camp periods this year, the eighth year for the Y's Adventure Day camp, will be July 5 through 9; July 12 through 16, and July 19 through 23.

Elopement Joins Man, 94; Woman, 73

COLUMBUS, Ga. (AP) — Amsey Sheffield didn't have a ladder and couldn't carry his love down one, but he and Nannie Gurley eloped and got married anyway.

"We were in love," exclaimed the new Mrs. Sheffield, a 73-year-old widow, showing off her crisp marriage license.

She announced that she and her 94-year-old husband soon would move from the nursing home where they live to her house in Columbus.

"The doctor didn't want me to stay alone," she said. "Now I've got someone to be with me 24 hours a day."

"We didn't know they were in love," said Sally Maloney, social services director at the Highland House Nursing Home. "All the ladies call Mr. Sheffield 'Honey' and 'Sugar.' We thought he was playing the field."

Sheffield, a widower, said he is looking forward to setting up

The bus, which will begin its rounds at 8:30 a.m., will make stops at the entrance at Oak Park, Knollwood Village, Northwood Park, Atwater school, Logan Elm Village, High Street school, Mound Street school, Corwin school, South Court Street school, Emmetts Chapel Church, and Nicholas Drive school. Campers from Ashville, Williamsport, South Bloomfield, and other county areas may be picked up and returned to the YMCA. Special pickup arrangements can be made in the areas for groups of five or more.

Added this year are swims at the Elsea pool on Tuesday and Thursday mornings and traditional camping activities of hiking, camp crafts, outdoor cooking, over-night camping, fishing, archery and nature study are offered weekly.

Miss Carolyn Roundhouse will be camp director and her assistants will be college and high school students, who are very well qualified to work with the children.

The purposes of Y day camp are the spiritual, educational, social and physical development of the campers. Camp Miska offers an excellent wooded facility in a grove with a small creek, a shallow pond for fishing and plenty of land for hiking and exploring.

You do not need to be a Y member to register for day camp and so if your child has completed the first grade, through 10 years of age, you may register at the Y.

housekeeping with his bride.

"But what if she can't cook?" asked a guest at the impromptu reception. "She better learn," he countered.

They decided Wednesday that the time had come, and called a friend from church to take them for blood tests and the ceremony by a probate judge, Mrs. Sheffield said.

They were married just across the state line, in Phenix City, Ala., to skip the three-day waiting period required by Georgia law.

It was "just too long," Sheffield said. The nursing home staff thought they'd just gone for a drive, he said.

Sheffield, who has the room next to his wife's, wanted to spend their wedding night in his wife's room. But the twin bed made sleeping difficult and before dawn, he kissed his bride good night and padded off to his own quarters.

"We were excited and laughing all night," Mrs. Sheffield said.

"And the nurses and all the aides kept knocking on the door to congratulate us."

She said she isn't worried about the 21-year difference between her age and her husband's.

"I always did like older men," she said.

GE Workers Out On Strike

CINCINNATI (AP) — About 4,000 jet engine workers remained on strike today at the General Electric Co. plant in suburban Evendale, Ohio.

Picket lines were ordered restricted Monday by the Hamilton County Common Pleas Court after GE lawyers contended the massive walkout caused a traffic jam on Interstate 75 and prevented many salaried and other workers from entering the sprawling plant.

Negotiations were scheduled to continue with one union and General Electric officials said they would make a wage proposal to a second union at the same time. GE manufactures jet and marine engines at the plant.

Hocking Technical College Has Scholarships Available

NELSONVILLE — Three new scholarships have been established at Hocking Technical College and will be available for the first time this fall, according to Vice President for Student Services Frank W. Downhour.

Two of the scholarships have been created for students in the Heat Processing Technology and a third is for students in the Ceramic Engineering Technology, Downhour said.

Ispsen Industries of Rockford, Ill., has established an annual scholarship of $600.

Mercenaries Await Ruling From Neto

LUANDA, Angola (AP) — The fate of four British and American mercenaries sentenced to be shot now lies with Angolan President Agostinho Neto.

Daniel Gearhart, 34, of Kensington, Md., and Costas Georgiu, Andrew McKenzie and John Derek Barker of Britain were sentenced Monday to face a firing squad for their actions in the Angolan civil war.

There were two other American defendants: Gustavo Grillo of Jersey City, N.J., who was sentenced to 30 years in prison, and Gary Acker, 21, of Sacramento, Calif., who got 16 years.

Seven other Britons were given prison sentences ranging from 16 to 30 years.

Neto must confirm the death sentences before they can be carried out. British lawyers here for the trial said they would appeal for clemency for all four.

Robert Cesner, the Columbus, Ohio, lawyer who defended Acker and Gearhart, said he would continue to work on the case until Acker "reaches Sacramento and Gearhart is home again with his family in Kensington, Md." Grillo refused his help.

The U.S. government, which vetoed Angola's application for membership in the United Nations last Thursday, called Gearhart's death sentence "unwarranted by the facts as we understand them."

"We do not believe the death sentence is justified under international law," said a State Department spokesman. But he refused to say what Washington could or would do about it.

Rubber Strike Talks Sought

CLEVELAND (AP) — Terming invocation of the Taft-Hartley Act premature, Secretary of Labor W.J. Usery Jr., met with officials of the striking United Rubber Workers, Firestone Tire and Rubber Co. and federal mediators Monday in an effort to unlock stalemated negotiations.

Usery's presence marks the first time the labor secretary has taken part in negotiations on the 10-week-old dispute.

The Taft-Hartley Act gives the president the power to issue a back-to-work order if the strike presents a threat to the nation's well-being.

In separate talks that lasted well into the evening, the secretary met with Peter Bommarito, URW international president, and James F. Scearce, chief federal mediator, as well as Firestone officials.

Meanwhile, in Akron, the Mohawk Tire and Rubber Co. obtained a restraining order after URW pickets shut down their plant Monday, a company official said.

Retail sales in Little Rock, Ark., topped $1 billion for the first time in 1974. In 1975, sales reached $1.1 billion.

In notifying the college of the grant, Charles G. Cloern, vice president-marketing, said it "expresses as well as anything our pleasure and satisfaction in the course of training you are providing students for this exciting industry . . . We look forward to each graduating group as a potential source for the kind of trained people which our company and our industry desperately need."

Pacific Scientific Company of City of Commerce, Calif., which specializes in equipment systems design, also established a $600 scholarship for Heat Processing students.

Rollo Millar, vice president and general manager of the Heat Treating Equipment Division, noted that many of Pacific Scientific's "innovations on the design of heat treating equipment were pioneered by our engineers."

A $500 scholarship for students in the Ceramic Engineering Technology has been established by The Refractories Institute and the Foundation in Refractories Education. The Institute is a national association formed to promote the interests of manufacturers and consumers of refractory products.

The Refractories Institute-FIRE Scholarship is the second to be established in the ceramic area at Hocking Tech, Downhour said. The first one was established last year by the A. P. Green Refractories Co. of Mexico, Mo.

Students enrolled in the Heat Processing or Ceramic programs or who plan to enroll may apply for the scholarships through J. William Hill, director of financial aid.

Storminess Diminishes

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Thunderstorms that ranged overnight across much of the nation declined in intensity today.

The storms struck the Midwest, the northern Plains, the southern Great Lakes region, New England, the Gulf Coast and scattered areas elsewhere in the nation.

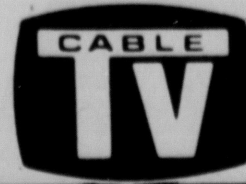

The severe weather Monday night included a tornado near Selinsgrove, Pa., and several funnel clouds sighted in Michigan. Winds gusted to 115 miles an hour at Chanute, Kan. and to 80 miles an hour at Wellington, Kan.

Large hail fell near Salina, Kans., Independence, Mo., and Bangor, Mich. Wind damage was reported in Michigan, Oklahoma and Kansas.

Warm weather was forecast for New England, the central Plains and the West.

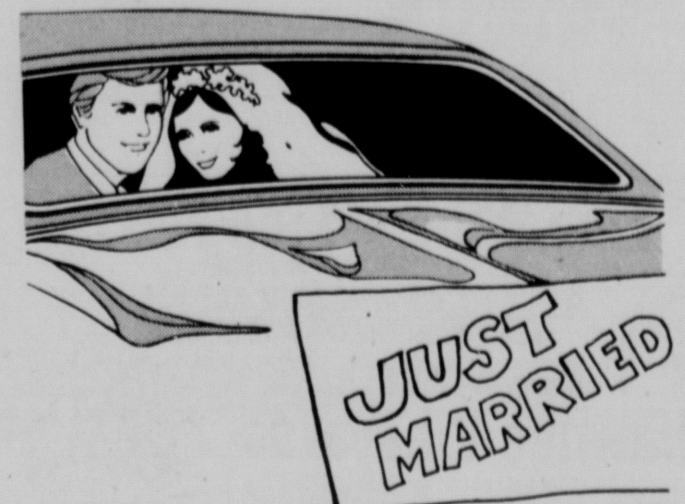

Early morning temperatures ranged from 97 at Phoenix, Ariz., to 44 at Gillette, Wyo., and Sawyer Air Force Base near Marquette, Mich.

YMCA Day Camp Stresses Involvement With Nature

Big plans for YMCA Day Camp this year will offer boys and girls an outdoor experience, stressing involvement with nature, group skills and also fellowship with other children. Minimum age for Day Camp is six. Children must be pre-registered for Day Camp and registrations can still be taken for the first period including this Saturday. They may be signed up at the YMCA and a limited number of sponsored children can also be registered.

The Day Camp is located at the Girl Scout Camp, Camp Miska, on the Saltcreek road off of Route 159. The fee includes transportation, craft material, daily beverage, trip insurance and food for the Friday cookout.

According to Harold Hewitt, YMCA director, the camp experience builds into today's youth a sense of belonging. When they come home they will have many stories to tell their parents about what they did, the new friends they met and all of the details. But moreover, they will have a valuable sense of comparison to their lives in the city, the sense of knowing there is something more than playing on the same street all summer long, might be the most important thing camp can give a child.

Camp periods this year, the eighth year for the Y's Adventure Day camp, will be July 5 through 9; July 12 through 16, and July 19 through 23.

Butler Gives You a Choice!

FARMSTED II—Straight Wall

Butler Farmsted Buildings

There was a time when a farmer's choice of pre-fabricated farm buildings didn't include a low-priced, well-engineered, all-metal structure.

Then, in 1970, Butler gave farmers this choice with Farmsted I (pictured below) — a sturdy, durable, functional, attractive all-metal farm building, at prices competitive to pole barns.

And farmers no longer had to pay for more or settle for less than they needed in a farm building.

Now, Butler offers you another choice — Farmsted II (pictured above). Farmsted II brings you most of the engineering advantages of Farmsted I, at just a few more dollars. Plus the benefits of straight wall construction, including large double slide doors in either or both side walls.

Options include a variety of color finishes, windows, walk-in doors, floor-to-ceiling "Life" Panels for plenty of natural daylight. All Farm-sted buildings are available in a broad range of widths, heights and lengths — and all Farmsted are adaptable to grain storage.

The choice is yours! Farmsted I — the "best seller" all-metal farm building — still offers a whole lot of building for a little less money than Farmsted II. Slope wall Farmsted I or straight wall Farmsted II, you can't go wrong. See us now for details.

Decision On Busing Proves Confusing

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court's first major school busing decision in two years has left more questions unanswered than it settled.

The court ruled 6 to 2 Monday that a federal judge exceeded his authority by requiring the Pasadena, Calif., school board to revise its busing plan annually to keep up with changing racial patterns and prevent black majority schools.

Speaking through Justice William H. Rehnquist, the court said the growth of schools with black majorities in Pasadena — from one after busing started in 1970 to five in 1974 — was due to "a quite normal pattern of human migration."

And, said the court, school boards should not be required to continually go back to the drawing board because of "people randomly moving into, out of, and around" their school districts.

The decision stemmed from a 1970 order by U.S. District Court Judge

Manuel Real of Los Angeles requiring the Pasadena district to eliminate all schools largely composed of members of one racial minority.

Left unanswered by the Supreme Court were questions such as these: —Was Real's order valid to begin with? The Supreme Court said in 1971 that fixed mathematical ratios could be used in arriving at desegregation remedies, but only as a starting point.

—How long should a school district be required to remain under court supervision once it has been found to be unconstitutionally segregated? President Ford has asked Congress to limit busing orders to five years, but opponents of his proposal say it would be unconstitutional.

—Should Real have accepted an alternative plan, based on "magnet" schools rather than busing, which the Pasadena board proposed after an antibusing majority was elected to the panel?

The Ninth U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals may take some of these questions up in reconsidering the Pasadena case along the lines established by the justices.

Justices Thurgood Marshall and William J. Brennan Jr., dissented. Justice John Paul Stevens did not take part.

It was the court's first full scale statement on busing since June 1974, when it ruled that federal courts must generally stop at the school district line in drawing up remedies for segregation.

Merchandise Taken From Rural Home

Pickaway County Sheriff's Deputies are searching for suspects who were seen fleeing from a Clifton Road home shortly before a robbery was discovered.

Richard Hinton, Route 3, Mount Sterling, told deputies that he investigated a suspicious noise about 3 a.m. Monday and saw a suspect throw something in his car and drive away at a high rate of speed.

Hinton found a .32 caliber H & A revolver, which had been taken from the bedroom of his home, in the car. The weapon had been recently fired, he said.

Checking further, Hinton discovered that a box of shells and $115 in change had also been taken from the bedroom. Jeffrey Rumer, 136 Cromley St., Ashville, told deputies that thieves broke into his car which was parked on the South Bloomfield-Royalton Road from 5:30 to 7 p.m. Sunday.

Rumer was apparently swimming in a creek while the incident occurred. Three packages of cigarettes and Rumer's wallet containing $1 were taken.

About $34 worth of bathroom decorating equipment was taken from the back of a truck owned by James L. Wood, Lockbourne Lodge, Ashville.

Radio Taken From Auto

James Bevins, 430 Watt St., told Circleville Police that thieves took a Royce citizen band radio from his car.

The vehicle was parked in front of the North Court Barber Shop. The radio is valued at $129.

Thieves took an Eureka upright sweeper valued at $70 from a Tower Court Apartment.

Dennis Kelley, occupant of the apartment, told police that he was in the process of moving to a home at 814 N. Court St. when the incident occurred.

Libya May Intervene In Lebanon

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Libya has threatened to intervene in the Lebanese civil war on the side of the Palestinians and their Lebanese Moslem allies if the Christians overrun two besieged Palestinian camps on the east side of Beirut, a leftist broadcast reported today.

Beirut Radio said Libyan Premier Abdel Salam Jalloud, who has been trying to arrange another cease-fire in the escalating civil war, warned that "Libya would stand on the side of the nationalist movement and the Palestinian revolution" and would have nothing to do with a proposed roundtable peace conference.

Jalloud called off a peacekeeping meeting with Christian leaders. He said he would not talk to them until they stopped the offensive against the Tal Zatar and Jisr al-Basha camps and agreed to a cease-fire.

Jalloud's threat raised the prospect of a confrontation between the several hundred Libyan troops in Lebanon as part of the proposed pan-Arab peacekeeping force and the thousands of Syrian troops who have invaded Lebanon since June 1 to prevent victory by the Palestinians and Lebanese Moslems.

There was no letup in the battle today in and around Beirut. The fighting still was hardest around the two Palestinian camps which the Christians have been trying to take for more than a week. But fires raged in the Christian-held port area. Mortar and artillery shells exploded at random in the Christian and Moslem sectors of the city. Fighting was reported in neighboring mountain areas.

Allen County Oil Derrick To Operate

LIMA, Ohio (AP) — An oil derrick, reminiscent of the first in the state, will begin pumping crude oil at the Allen County Fairgrounds Saturday as part of the county's bicentennial celebration.

The derrick was begun in May after the bicentennial commission spent several months searching for authentic machinery and equipment for use in the 72-foot solid oak scaffold.

Traffic accidents claimed more than 45,500 lives in the United States in 1975, according to the American Safety Belt Council.

Death Trial In 2nd Day

CANTON, Ohio (AP) — The trial of two men charged in connection with the death of three firemen in a restaurant explosion last year entered its second day today before a three-judge panel.

The defendants, Myron Tilton, 36, and Gary Thompson, 32, both of Canton, are charged with aggravated murder and aggravated arson. They waived their right to a jury trial and requested that three judges hear the case.

The firemen were killed while fighting a blaze at the La Cuisina Restaurant in Massillon on Nov. 30 when an explosion ripped through the building.

Two other men also are charged in the case. They are Louis Battista, 59, the husband of the restaurant owner, and Joseph Paone, 61, who managed the restaurant.

Stark County Prosecutor James Unger said in opening remarks Monday he would attempt to prove that Battista and Paone hired Thompson, Tilton and Fred Delasandro to burn the restaurant to collect $550,000 in insurance money. Unger alleged that business in the restaurant had fallen off in the period before the November fire and explosion.

Morgan, Reds Top Padres, 7-3

SAN DIEGO (AP) — Joe Morgan says a pulled muscle continues to leave him in pain, but the Cincinnati Reds second baseman still managed to hurt the San Diego Padres.

Morgan, making only his second appearance in 11 games, drove in four runs with three hits in pacing the Reds to a 7-3 victory Monday night over the Padres at San Diego.

"My side feels much better, but I still feel the pain when I swing for just an instant," he said. "There's nothing broken, but I probably won't be at 100 per cent for the rest of the season."

Despite the pain, Morgan led a four-run Cincinnati rally with his 13th home run of the year, a three-run shot into the right field seats.

Morgan's blow offset a three-run first-inning homer by Padre first baseman Willie McCovey. Morgan counteracted McCovey's efforts again in the seventh with a spectacular diving grab of a McCovey line drive with the bases loaded and two men out.

Ignoring his pain, Morgan managed to straighten up in time to nail McCovey at first base and get the Reds safely out of the inning.

"The only time it really hurt tonight was when I made the diving stop on McCovey's grounder," said Morgan, referring to his pulled side muscles. "I wanted to lay there for a minute until the pain stopped, but there wasn't time."

After Morgan's three-run homer, Tony Perez and Pete Rose each drove in another run to put the game out of San Diego's reach.

Despite missing 14 games this season, first with a back injury and later with the side problems, Morgan is the second-highest RBI man for Cincinnati, tied with Perez at 52. George Foster leads with 62.

The little second baseman hurt his side in batting practice June 17 prior to an exhibition game in Indianapolis against the Reds' AAA farm club.

"There's no telling how many home runs and RBI's I could have if I hadn't been out of the lineup so much," said Morgan. "But I know it couldn't be any less and I'm way ahead of last year's pace."

One man who probably won't question that is Padre manager John McNamara.

"Morgan beat us tonight with both the bat and the glove," he said. "He makes a big difference to that team when he's in the lineup."

Al Oliver, who is only the National League's leading hitter, is watching the votes just like Gerald Ford and Ronald Reagan; but the only chance he has of going to the All-Star Game is as a favorite son of the Pittsburgh Pirates.

"I am a little disappointed that I'm not higher on the list," Oliver said after driving in four runs with two singles, a double and his 12th homer as the Pirates trounced the Chicago Cubs 9-2 Monday night.

That boosted his batting average to .352, but according to the latest All-Star voting announced Monday Oliver stands only 12th among NL outfielders. It's not as if Oliver suddenly arrived

Tired Judy Rankin Wins Zaharias Golf

CHAGRIN FALLS, Ohio (AP) — Slim blonde Judy Rankin looked beat as she acknowledged her victory to the crowd gathered around the 18th green after the final hole of the $100,000 Babe Zaharias Invitational Monday.

She trudged to the press room and listened wearily while playing partner JoAnne Carner explained how a gamble on her drive on the 18th hole at tortuous Tanglewood Country Club cost her a chance at victory.

That drive, a typical booming blast by the rugged Mrs. Carner, clipped a dead tree along the left side of the fairway and bounced out of bounds, the beginning of a killing double bogey six.

Mrs. Rankin, playing as if pressure was for someone else to worry about, calmly played to a conventional par on the hole, finishing the tournament one under par at 287.

That was one stroke ahead of Jane Blalock and three ahead of Mrs. Carner, both of whom began the day tied for second, three strokes off Mrs. Rankin's pace.

The victory was good for $15,000 and a new single season earnings record of $96,830. That total, with still half the 1976 season to go, broke Mrs. Carner's 1974 mark of $87,094.

"I'm going to leave the tour for a couple of weeks after the next three or four tournaments," said the suddenly animated Mrs. Rankin. "But I want to get over $100,000 before I do, for sure. That's a record I want because nobody else can ever be the first to do it."

Her fourth tournament victory of the year did not come easily, though.

Despite back-to-back 69's in the middle two rounds of the 72-hole tournament, Mrs. Rankin almost gave it away on the final day.

Playing in a light rain, the veteran

Ladies Professional Golf Association member "quick-hooked" her tee shot on No. 17 into a lateral water hazard. A bad lie caused her to hit a second shot off a cart path near the green, and that led to a double bogey six that suddenly put both Miss Blalock and Mrs. Carner just one stroke away.

Bowling At A Glance

The guys and gals at Circle D Lanes really sent the pins "a-flyin'" last week as several of them racked up respectable scores.

Knocking up scores of 200 or better in individual games were Dick Nichols, 204; Richard Caldwell, 224; Randy Arledge, 255 and 236; Gary Barthelmas, 232; John Conrad, 216; Jerry Riegel, 207; high scorer Dick Moon who had 268; Teddy Fausnaugh, 217; Jean McGee, 203; Peggy Fischer, 214; Margaret Thomas, 211; Jeanne Valentine, 201; Bev Ferguson, 204 and Nancy Willoughby, 212.

Ladies topping the hardwood for 500 or better in a series were: Pat Myers, 518; Nancy Willoughby, 514; Margaret Thomas, 525; Martha Sharrett, 528; Diana Schlegler, 525; Jeanne Valentine, 529; Sue Schiff, 536; Bev Ferguson, 545; Peggy Fischer, 538; Ruth Lowe, 521; Georgie Gaines, 507 and Teddy Fausnaugh with a top score of 559.

Men with series of 600 or better were Randy Arledge, 687; Larry Dietrich, 639 and Fred Belles, 607.

High team game went to No. 5 in the Monday Men's League.

on the scene. He began the season with a .292 career average and 1,172 hits, more than any active player his age — he's 29 — except Cincinnati's Johnny Bench, who had 74 more hits . . . in 580 more at bats.

"For seven years, I've been playing as well as I can and have contributed a lot to this team," Oliver said. "But for some reason, I just don't seem to get the votes."

In other NL action, the Philadelphia Phillies whipped the Montreal Expos 6-2, the Cincinnati Reds downed the San Diego Padres 7-3, the Los Angeles Dodgers beat the Atlanta Braves 5-2, the Houston Astros drubbed the San Francisco Giants 8-2 and the New York Mets edged the St. Louis Cardinals 5-4.

Phillies 6, Expos 2

Garry Maddox celebrated the birth of a son by driving in three runs and Mike Schmidt hit his 21st home run in support of Steve Carlton's six-hit pitching. Maddox was informed in the top of the eighth that his wife had given birth to the couple's second son.

Dodgers 5, Braves 2

Lee Lacy broke a tie with a sacrifice fly in the seventh inning and Bill Buckner followed with a homer. Bill Russell's two-run single in the sixth inning broke up a scoreless duel between unbeaten Rick Rhoden, 7-0, and Dick Ruthven.

Astros 8, Giants 2

Cliff Johnson knocked in three runs with a pair of doubles and Mike Cosgrove struck out 10 while pitching six strong innings. Johnson's two-run double gave the Astros a 2-0 lead in the second inning. Jose Cruz added a two-run single for Houston while Bob Watson had a two-run double.

Mets 5, Cardinals 4

A wild pitch by St. Louis relief ace Al Hrabosky with two out in the eighth inning allowed Dave Kingman to score from third base with the winning run. Earlier, Kingman increased his major league home run lead with his 26th of the season and John Milner added a two-run single, but Tom Seaver was unable to hold a 4-1 lead.

Morgan, Reds Top Padres, 7-3

SAN DIEGO (AP) — Joe Morgan says a pulled muscle continues to leave him in pain, but the Cincinnati Reds second baseman still managed to hurt the San Diego Padres.

Morgan, making only his second appearance in 11 games, drove in four runs with three hits in pacing the Reds to a 7-3 victory Monday night over the Padres at San Diego.

"My side feels much better, but I still feel the pain when I swing for just an instant," he said. "There's nothing broken, but I probably won't be at 100 per cent for the rest of the season."

Twins Edge Past Royals, 4-3

By FRANK BROWN
AP Sports Writer

There still is plenty of whip in his bat. There still are a few running strides left in his cranky legs though Tony Oliva's ravaged right knee has caused him agony that might have shelved others.

"Most people would never put up with the pain or put in the work he has just to play this game," marvelled Minnesota Manager Gene Mauch after the 35-year-old designated hitter helped the Twins beat the Kansas City Royals 4-3 Monday night.

That's why the fans stand and cheer when Oliva comes to bat at Metropolitan Stadium. The three-time batting champion is the sole remaining link to the glory days of Twins baseball when he and Harmon Killebrew tore up American League pitching.

"I think Tony still hopes he'll be able to play every day again," says Mauch, who knows that will never happen because of seven operations on the tortured right knee — two of which came in 11 days. "Can you think of many people you'd rather see hitting in the clutch?"

Oliva walked to the plate in such a situation in the eighth inning Monday night, with the Twins down a run and Lyman Bostock on first base. He bounced a Mark Littell pitch off the right-field fence for a double, scoring Bostock, then pushed all he could on that game right leg and chugged into third base during the Kansas City throw home.

Covering the last 90 feet was left to Jerry Terrell, who pinchran for Oliva and scored the game-winning run on Larry Hise's sacrifice fly.

In the other AL games Monday night, Boston battered Baltimore 12-8; Cleveland bested Milwaukee 5-3; Texas beat Oakland 3-2 in 11 innings, and Detroit downed New York 5-1.

Red Sox 12, Orioles 8

Boston rookie Butch Hobson — inserted in a shaken-up starting lineup after his arrival from the minors — celebrated with a double and a tie-breaking, two-run, inside-the-park homer as the Red Sox ripped the Orioles.

The victory went to veteran Ferguson Jenkins, 6-8, who made his first appearance as a reliever since 1970 and struck out eight over the final four innings.

Indians 5, Brewers 3

John Lowenstein and George Hendrick each slammed a home run as Cleveland handed the Brewers their fifth consecutive loss and ninth in 11 games. The Indians have won 13 of their last 19.

Rangers 3, A's 2

Jeff Burroughs looped a oneout single to center field in the bottom of the 11th inning to score Lenny Randle from second base and give Texas its victory over Oakland.

Gene Clines' two-run single in the bottom of the eighth inning had given the Rangers a 2-0 lead, but the A's tied it in the top of the ninth when Don Baylor and Gene Tenace hit home runs.

Oakland's Mike Norris had pitched 6 2-3 innings of perfect baseball until Mike Hargrove singled to left in the bottom of the seventh.

Tigers 5, Yankees 1

Rusty Staub and Aurelio Rodriguez slammed home runs to back a seven-hitter by rookie Mark Fidrych, who won his eighth game in nine decisions as Detroit ended a five-game New York winning streak.

Fast Action Features Card

Racing fans were treated to some spectacular driving Saturday night at Atomic Speedway, if they could manage to hold out during the very long evening of events.

The three feature races were split between the tri-states, with a Hoosier taking top prize money in midjets, a West Virginian winning the super sprints feature, and an Ohioan copping first in late models.

Les Scott of Ocoon, Ind. was top winner in the midjet feature, after battling the entire race with Bob Casto of Charleston, W. Va. Scott darted ahead at the beginning but was soon overtaken by Casto, who held the lead throughout most of the contest, only to lose out to Scott in the last seconds. In close pursuit of the two lead cars at all times was Mike Brill, Dayton, who came in third.

After a dry spell of a couple of weeks, George Harbour, Huntington, W. Va., found himself once again accepting the checkered flag as the winner of the sprints feature in his "Charlie Brown Special".

The sprints got off to a bad start, as a nasty pile-up in No. 3 turn during the first lap reduced the field of 20 cars to 14. At the restart Harbour once again made his dash for freedom from the pack and made it, to lap the field before the end of the race. Rookie Tim Dussel, Radnor, came in second a half lap behind Harbour, followed by Terry Hade, Bettsville.

More bad luck dogged the late model feature, beginning with Don Clark blowing a tire during the first lap, followed by Greg Hatfield hitting the wall with a major pile-up resulting.

The bad luck also affected Paul Coyan, Jackson, four-time winner this season, with the June race interrupting his string of victories.

Coyan, starting in ninth position, had made his way to second place when he spun out in the eighth lap, causing him to be sent to the rear of the field. Using the steady, non-aggressive driving style he has shown all season, he was in ninth place by the 12th lap, in fourth at the 17th, and in second by the 20th.

Bobby Oney, driving his new red-white-and-blue special, had first place all to himself, however, and wasn't about to relinquish it to Coyan. Coyan edged into first place briefly but wasn't able to hold it. It was the second win of the season for Oney, a Jackson native now living in Columbus. Delmas Conley, Wheelersburg, was third.

Top qualifiers of the evening were Bob Casto in midjets, who was clocked at 16.56, George Harbour in super sprints with 15.12, and Coyan in late models with 17.07.

The Fourth of July Bicentennial Championship will be held this Saturday, with a fireworks display during the evening.

Kings Island Gets Grid Hall Of Fame

NEW YORK (AP) — The National Football Foundation has accepted an offer from the Taft Broadcasting Co. to locate a collegiate football hall of fame at Taft's 1,600-acre Kings Island amusement complex, 25 miles north of Cincinnati.

The hall of fame building will be located one mile from the theme park and adjacent to the Kings Island Inn and campground.

LE's Tony Crist Fires One-Hitter Over Berne Union

Logan Elm's Tony Crist came within two outs of a no-hitter as the Braves mowed down opposition batters enroute to a 9-1 victory over Berne Union in the second round of the Mid State Summer League Tournament being held at Lancaster High School.

The Braves were No. 1 seeded in the tournament and drew a bye in the first round.

Logan Elm got all the runs they needed in the sixth inning as Lynn Strehle bopped a two-run triple and Brave hitters plated two more runs in the inning.

Crist, who allowed no hits until after one out in the seventh, struck out 12 and walked six. Decker suffered the loss for Berne Union. Helping Strehle in the batter's box were Chuck Cave who cracked a single and drove in three runs, Randy Pontius who lined a double and single, Jeff Collins who hit a double, and Jerry Scanlan who added a single.

Logan Elm will play the winner of the Lancaster Gold-Winchester Game in the semi-finals which will be held 10 a.m. Saturday at Lancaster High School.

The Story of America

THE BOSTON TEA PARTY December 16, 1773

Dressed as Mohawk Indians, Boston patriots boarded three British ships at anchor in the harbor, and threw their tea cargoes overboard in a show of American resistance to the three-pence-per-pound duty imposed on tea by the British government.

IT'S easy to unload your concerns about long-term financial security by investing your accumulated savings in an insured certificate of deposit. Enjoy the unbeatable compound interest rewards available to you just for holding your certificate to maturity.

ENGLISH SCHOLASTIC HONOR — Cindy Johnson, Circleville High School, winner of the English 9 section of the Ohio Tests of Scholastic Achievement, has been honored by the state board of education. The tests are sponsored annually by the Ohio Department of Education in 16 subject areas. More than 22,000 students from over 650 secondary schools entered the competition. Those attending the awards presentation were, from the left, Roger Wolfe, secondary supervisor of Circleville City Schools; Ward M. Miller, state board member; Miss Johnson; Mr. and Mrs. John Johnson Jr., her parents.

Bailout Proposal For Entire Nations To Cost Taxpayers

SAN JUAN, Puerto Rico (AP) — A multibillion-dollar financial bailout for industrial nations, similar to the aid plan for New York City, is being studied by the Western world's economic powers.

Details aren't yet worked out, but U.S. taxpayers could contribute as much as $2 billion to an aid package that could total $6.1 billion.

Italy may be the first to receive help, U.S. officials indicated Monday, with Great Britain likely to be next in line.

The leaders of the U.S., British, Canadian, French, Italian, Japanese and West German governments discussed the need for special aid at their economic summit conference here Sunday and Monday.

"We recognize that problems may arise for a few developed countries which have special needs, which have not yet restored domestic economic stability, and which face major payments deficits," they said in a joint statement at the end of the meeting.

The significance of the aid plan, if it is put into operation, would be that the industrial nations would be committed to preventing the financial collapse of any of their group.

There would be a price to pay, however. President Ford said in a statement that any aid should be made available "in conjunction with a firm program for restoring underlying equilibrium." That means nations receiving aid would be expected to balance their budgets, even if it meant painful belt-tightening for their people.

This would be similar to the price New York is paying for Washington's help with its financial crisis. The city has had to agree to budget-balancing economies, and the loans to it are for relatively short periods.

Both Britain and Italy are running substantial budget deficits which U.S. officials contend are aggravating already serious inflationary conditions and causing the steady erosion in the value of the Italian lira and British pound.

The United States and other industrial nations have pledged more than $5 billion in temporary aid to help keep the British pound from falling farther. But U.S. officials have said any additional aid for Britain, or Italy, would probably come through the International Monetary Fund, to which the United States is the biggest contributor.

Treasury Secretary William E. Simon said one possibility for establishing the aid program is to set up a new lending program within the IMF. He indicated this could be done without authorization from the U.S. Congress because Congress has already appropriated $2 billion — which has not been used — for a $6.1-billion fund called the General Agreement to Borrow. This is a reserve fund established by the 10 major industrial nations to provide additional funds for the IMF if it needs them.

SPANISH SCHOLASTIC HONOR—David Cook, Circleville High School, winner of the second year Spanish section of the Ohio Tests of Scholastic Achievement, has been honored by the state board of education. The state board of education has promoted programs that challenge academic skills of young people and provide those with unusual talents the incentives they need to develop their potential. Present at the awards ceremony were, from the left: Roger Wolfe, Circleville secondary supervisor; Ward Miller, state board member; Cook, Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Cook Jr., his parents; and Liz Cook, his sister.

Teays Valley Board Employs 7 Teachers, Has 3 Vacancies

The Teays Valley Board of Education Monday approved the employment of seven teachers, leaving only three vacancies remaining to be staffed in the school district.

The vacancies remaining are for high school principal, high school Spanish and high school science.

The teachers employed Monday were:

Mrs. Gaula Gartrell, art; Mrs. Janet Boggs, home economics; Mrs. Sandra Petty, elementary; Mrs. Doris Schimpf, learning disabilities; Jeff Helser, health and physical education; Mrs. Carol Albright, business education; Miss Monica Noetzel, EMR teacher.

The assignment of teachers for the 1976-77 term were approved by the board. Resignations accepted by the board were submitted by:

Mrs. Mary Bendycki, Spanish and year book advisor; Mrs. Sharon Alford, fourth grade at Scioto; Mrs. Romona Welch, business education and golf coach; Mrs. Angelique Rinehart, supplemental contract as volleyball coach.

The board approved a resolution to secure the services of Squire, Saunders and Dempsey as bond counsel. A resolution of necessity to place the bond issue on the ballot at the November General Election.

The bond issue will be in the amount of $4,750,000 at an estimated average of 5.7 mills and is the same package which was presented to the voters of the Teays Valley District at the June Primary Election.

The board authorized the investment of $100,000 of general fund money for a period of 30 days.

Miss Patricia King was reassigned as junior high school guidance counselor. She has been the EMR teacher. A resolution to extend the base contract for William Lewis and to assign him the position of occupational work adjustment coordinator in the high school was approved.

The business education textbooks as submitted by the committee of teachers and as previously adopted by the county board of education were approved.

The following teachers were employed under supplemental contracts: Steven Pfaffman, instrumental music teacher; Jeff Helser, assistant football coach; Steve Pusey, assistant football coach; Delmer Doddrell, junior high basketball and track coach; Jeff Sheets, assistant high school track coach. Supplemental contracts for two teachers enrolled in summer course work were approved.

Permission was granted to the Ashville Community Club to use the elementary building for Fourth of July displays. Approval was granted for professional leave.

The Church of Christ in Christian Union was granted permission to use the Ashville Elementary Auditorium for Sunday School for an indefinite period. Custodial services and rental payment are to be furnished by the church.

The resignation of William Hoover as custodian at the high school was approved. He retires effective Aug. 1. John Collett was employed as his replacement. Richard Groff was employed at an hourly rate to supervise the Neighborhood Youth Corps program during July and August.

Areas in supplemental duties that remain to be filled are: assistant wrestling coach, high school yearbook advisor, high school science - math department chairman; high school golf coach, varsity, reserve and freshman cheerleader advisors, girls volleyball coach, dramatics director at the high school.

Athens Policemen Go To College

NELSONVILLE, Ohio (AP) — Several Athens city policemen and instructors at Hocking Technical College will exchange roles this summer.

The policemen will be going into college accident investigation courses, while the instructors will be putting their theory to work for six weeks in the Athens streets.

Seychelles Now Independent

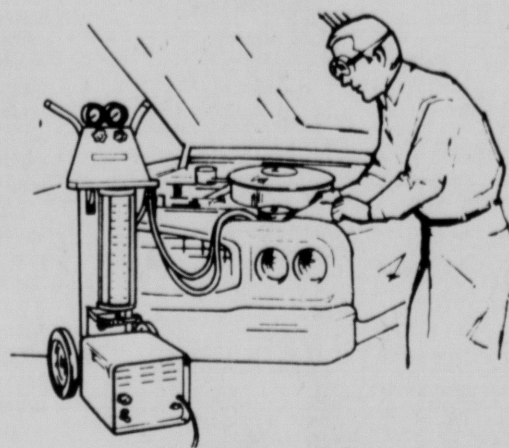

VICTORIA, Seychelles (AP) — The Seychelles islands in the Indian Ocean became independent at midnight Monday after 182 years as a British colony.

The new republic, which will remain in the British Commonwealth, was born at a flag-raising ceremony in the sports stadium in Victoria, on Mahe island, capital of the 90 lush islands 1,000 miles off the east coast of Africa.

The British captured the islands from the French in 1794. The population of 58,000 is hoping to increase the tourist trade to reduce dependence on British aid.

Howard Chandler Christy, world famed illustrator and portrait painter, was born in an old log house with a stick chimney in 1873, a short distance from McConnelsville, Ohio in Morgan County.

ENGLISH SCHOLASTIC HONOR — Cindy Johnson, Circleville High School, winner of the English 9 section of the Ohio Tests of Scholastic Achievement, has been honored by the state board of education. The tests are sponsored annually by the Ohio Department of Education in 16 subject areas. More than 22,000 students from over 650 secondary schools entered the competition. Those attending the awards presentation were, from the left, Roger Wolfe, secondary supervisor of Circleville City Schools; Ward M. Miller, state board member; Miss Johnson; Mr. and Mrs. John Johnson Jr., her parents.

Bailout Proposal For Entire Nations To Cost Taxpayers

SAN JUAN, Puerto Rico (AP) — A multibillion-dollar financial bailout for industrial nations, similar to the aid plan for New York City, is being studied by the Western world's economic powers.

Details aren't yet worked out, but U.S. taxpayers could contribute as much as $2 billion to an aid package that could total $6.1 billion.

Italy may be the first to receive help, U.S. officials indicated Monday, with Great Britain likely to be next in line.

The leaders of the U.S., British, Canadian, French, Italian, Japanese and West German governments discussed the need for special aid at their economic summit conference here Sunday and Monday.

"We recognize that problems may arise for a few developed countries which have special needs, which have not yet restored domestic economic stability, and which face major payments deficits," they said in a joint statement at the end of the meeting.

The significance of the aid plan, if it is put into operation, would be that the industrial nations would be committed to preventing the financial collapse of any of their group.

There would be a price to pay, however. President Ford said in a statement that any aid should be made available "in conjunction with a firm program for restoring underlying equilibrium." That means nations receiving aid would be expected to balance their budgets, even if it meant painful belt-tightening for their people.

This would be similar to the price New York is paying for Washington's help with its financial crisis. The city has had to agree to budget-balancing economies, and the loans to it are for relatively short periods.

Both Britain and Italy are running substantial budget deficits which U.S. officials contend are aggravating already serious inflationary conditions and causing the steady erosion in the value of the Italian lira and British pound.

The United States and other industrial nations have pledged more than $5 billion in temporary aid to help keep the British pound from falling farther. But U.S. officials have said any additional aid for Britain, or Italy, would probably come through the International Monetary Fund, to which the United States is the biggest contributor.

Treasury Secretary William E. Simon said one possibility for establishing the aid program is to set up a new lending program within the IMF. He indicated this could be done without authorization from the U.S. Congress because Congress has already appropriated $2 billion —

Athens Policemen Go To College

NELSONVILLE, Ohio (AP) — Several Athens city policemen and instructors at Hocking Technical College will exchange roles this summer.

The policemen will be going into college accident investigation courses, while the instructors will be putting their theory to work for six weeks in the Athens streets.

Seychelles Now Independent

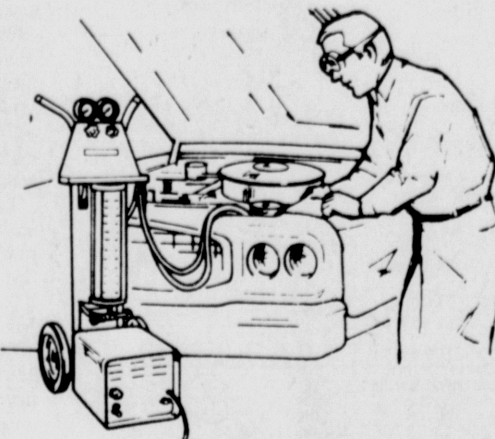

VICTORIA, Seychelles (AP) — The Seychelles islands in the Indian Ocean became independent at midnight Monday after 182 years as a British colony.

The new republic, which will remain in the British Commonwealth, was born at a flag-raising ceremony in the sports stadium in Victoria, on Mahe island, capital of the 90 lush islands 1,000 miles off the east coast of Africa.

The British captured the islands from the French in 1794. The population of 58,000 is hoping to increase the tourist trade to reduce dependence on British aid.

Howard Chandler Christy, world famed illustrator and portrait painter, was born in an old log house with a stick chimney in 1873, a short distance from McConnelsville, Ohio in Morgan County.
